NICLAS (aged 15) RECRUITS THE CHILDREN'S COMMISSIONER!

Niclas Want is congratulated by the Vale Council Leader, Coun Neil Moore.

NICLAS WANT, a member of the Vale of Glamorgan youth cabinet, and a pupil at Ysgol Gyfun Bro Morgannwg, was recently closely involved in the recruitment and selection process of the new Children's Commissioner for Wales, Professor Sally Donaldson.

Niclas, aged 15, was one of five young people from across Wales who took part in the confidential process of shortlisting and interviewing potential candidates for the new role.

'VICTIM WAS THROWN OVER HANDLEBARS' - COURT TOLD Man is jailed after bottle injures cyclist

A financial advisor suffered serious injuries when he was thrown over the handlebars of his bicycle, after a passenger in a passing car threw a plastic Coke bottle at him.

The bottle went into the spokes of the front wheel of the machine, causing Mr John Mihell to fall to the road, where he broke an elbow and had a suspected fracture of his wrist, plus cuts and bruises.

The man responsible, 19-year-old Sunny Hannah was shouted to friends in the vehicle "Watch this, that was a good throw".

Hannah, of Laleston Close, Barry, was sent to a Young Offender institution for 12 months after he pleaded guilty to inflicting grievous bodily harm.

Recorder Ian Murphy QC said "All four of you in the car were involved in unseemly, anti-social behaviour".

Mr Mihell suffered serious injuries and is not fully recovered.

The Recorder added: "This was

by AJ SICLUNA

an act of wanton violence, committed for your own amusement, to show off to friends."

He said Hannah had a relevant previous conviction involving him attacking a complete stranger.

Prosecutor Tony Trigg said that on June 13, Mr Mihell was cycling along Lavernock Road.

Earlier, people had seen the car in which Hannah was a passenger driving erratically in Redlands Road, Penarth. Mr Mihell was cycling along when Hannah suddenly threw a Coke bottle, which went between the front wheel spokes.

When Mr Mihell was thrown from his bicycle, Hannah laughed, said Mr Trigg. When interviewed, Hannah claimed he was not responsible, and blamed another person in the vehicle, who was totally innocent, but who was also interviewed by the police.

Mr Trigg said: "The final nail for Hannah was that his DNA was found on the bottle."

Hannah was said to have convictions for causing damage, theft, possessing an offensive weapon, possessing drugs, affray, and causing actual bodily harm.

The cycle, said Mr Trigg, which had a titanium frame, was a write-off, and had been worth £2,143.

In a statement, the victim said he had been in considerable pain and discomfort, had difficulty sleeping, and was unable to drive to work in west Wales.

Mr Trigg said: "The use of that bottle was tantamount to the use of a weapon."

Hannah's solicitor, Adam Sharp said: "It is accepted he was not initially forthcoming, but he had time to reflect and there is now a degree of remorse."

"It was an act of gross stupidity. He was foolhardy from a young age and had behavioural problems."

The sentence is to run consecutively to a 14-month sentence Hannah is currently serving for supplying heroin.

'Let's think of the future, and build for the children!'

I'M writing in support of the letter from David Parry (The GEM February 12), who makes a strong case for additional housing in the Vale and uses his own family's situation to highlight the problem that exists.

I know the statistics do not exist, but it would be instructive to know how many of the houses sold in the rural Vale have been bought by incomers over the last 10, 20 or 30 years.

I ask the question because I would guess that young people and others who need affordable housing, have increasingly been priced out of the housing market in the rural Vale by older incomers, who have fuelled the rapid price rises we have seen.

Regular readers will recall the furore in these pages in March 2013 when the Vale Council proposed to close a number of primary schools in the rural Vale.

A well-organised campaign stopped this from happening. The problem had arisen because the average age of the population in the area had risen as younger people were forced to move out because of a lack of affordable housing.

You really can't have under-utilised local primary schools when you sell houses to older people and choke off the supply of new pupils.

We have been told that average private household monthly rents are at their highest ever.

We are also told that there is an acute shortage of homes for first time buyers, as they have been priced out of the market. The solution, everyone agrees, is to build more homes. The figure mentioned is an extra 300,000 homes per year for the foreseeable future. During the period of the LDP 2011 - 26 this is an extra 4.5 million homes that it is estimated should be added to the UK housing stock to satisfy housing needs, keep rents at a reasonable level, and avoid housing price bubbles.

This puts the 10,000 homes in the Vale into some sort of context, as it amounts to an additional contribution of 0.22 per cent to the UK housing stock.

Such a building effort must mean the use of some greenfield sites, plus effective use of brownfield sites and infill development. It also means that the smaller towns and villages of the rural Vale will have to expand to take their share of the additional homes.

If there is any criticism to be levelled it is, possibly, that the Vale Council has historically not been ruthless enough in ensuring that planning gain attached to the planning permission is achieved, and the adequate infrastructure to support housing development has not been delivered.

So, come on everybody - let's build for the future, for our children and grandchildren - so that they have homes to live in and are not forced to leave the rural Vale.

Let's revitalise the building industry and create a new, expanding industry - installing and maintaining solar panels and other green energy initiatives - so that our children and grandchildren have improved job and housing opportunities.

SPEAKING UP FOR THE WELSH NHS...

ON the evening of Monday, February 9, while practising some inadequate kitchen knife skills, I cut my hand.

Although the cut appeared quite deep, I did not feel it severe enough to trouble staff in the already overworked accident and emergency department at my local hospital in Morriston. I commenced to self-treat the wound with some plasters and a bandage.

In any event, by the morning of Wednesday, February 11, it was evident that the cut was a little more unpleasant than I had first thought.

I work in the Bridgend area and decided, after all my best intentions, to attend the accident and emergency department at the Princess of Wales Hospital.

It was my first visit to the hospital in any capacity and as I entered the waiting room, I could see that there were several people already in attendance.

At the reception area, the female receptionist dealt with me in a very polite and friendly manner, obtaining my details and asking me to take a seat.

A very short time later, my name was called by a nurse, who I subsequently found to be Nurse Practitioner Buddug Roberts.

I was taken to a treatment area where my poorly dressed wound was dealt with. The nurse was very kind and empathetic towards me, treating me with good humour, even though in the grand scale of things my wound was relatively minor in comparison to what I assume is dealt with on a daily basis.

In the true spirit of the National Health Service, she gave me the impression that at that moment in time, treating me was her highest priority.

I was dealt with from start to finish in less than 40 minutes - it took me longer to park the car.

All too often, patients are ready to complain about poor service. In order to help balance the books I felt, on leaving the hospital, that as I had experienced the best that the NHS has to offer, I needed to report on my positive experience.

While my injury is relatively minor, I felt it was important to point out the excellent care which I was afforded by the staff, in particular Nurse Practitioner Roberts, who are a credit to the hospital, as well as our NHS as a whole.

Phil Jones, Swansea.

Planning delay is no fun...

WOW, what an amazing statement by the Vale Council, regarding their frustration at delays over the Barry Island funfair initiative.

The usually confidential negotiations with proposed developers exploded into the public domain with a statement of annoyance from the council.

The strength of the council's frustration is quite clear: negotiations with the developer appear to have 'reached an impasse'; site owners have made it clear they will not allow the site to be used 'until they obtain planning permission'; 'held to ransom by the site owners', and 'extremely frustrating'. FocusBARRY has arranged with Mr Danter, the well-known funfair operator, to tell the Barry community about his ambitions for the site at their next meeting on March 4, but planning permission to build 25 units of accommodation appears to be a precondition of allowing Mr Danter to proceed.

He wants to be on-site for Easter - the council are supportive of that ambition, as are the majority of people commenting on social media.

It will be extremely disappointing to many if these plans are thwarted by a planning application which is not connected to the funfair development. Dennis Harkus, (FocusBARRY supporter).

Paddle steamer appeal

IT would not be too difficult to secure historical maritime artifacts for Barry - with your readers' help.

The paddle steamer Barry was built in 1907 for, and named after the town, a heroine of both World Wars - from Barry to the Dardanelles, the Bristol Channel to Dunkirk.

A few like-minded people liaising with local groups, associations, business, historians and individuals, hope to ensure that artifacts from the paddle steamer are returned home prior to the Gallipoli commemorations.

Donations and other help welcomed. JT Greenway, Chairman, The Merchant Navy Association (Wales) Barry branch, 19 Fryatt Street, Barry.

'Balanced views on housing'

I WRITE in support of the balanced and sensible views expressed by David Parry under the headline of 'Rural communities need to take their share of housing' (GEM Letters, February 12).

Providing the planning authority ensures the development is accompanied by the right infrastructure, there can be no logical argument against this much-needed, affordable housing - which will, hopefully, lead to young local people not having to move out of the community into which they were born.

Most of the objections appear to come from those who seek to deny others the opportunity to reside in or near Cowbridge, which smacks of self-preservation to maintain some sort of misguided elitist community - to the detriment of those in need.

John Evans, Talygarn.

'The real reason for recycling closures?'

THE Vale of Glamorgan Council has recently closed a number of recycling centres in Barry because of so-called 'fly tipping and abuse'.

This reasoning is disingenuous, to say the least. As an assiduous recycler, I used three of these sites on a regular basis - at the Waitrose supermarket, the Waterfront close to the Halford's store and alongside the Gladstone Road roundabout near the police station.

Any 'fly-tipping and abuse' was marginal. My interpretation of 'fly-tipping' is the dumping of furniture, mattresses, builders' rubble, television sets, fridges, cookers - and other large items that should be disposed of at the council's waste amenity site.

I cannot recall any of the preceding items being offloaded at the sites I used. In my view, the real reason for closure was staggeringly simple: the bins were not emptied frequently enough and thus became overwhelmed and unsightly.

The council should be more honest and admit their failure to manage the sites properly.

Rather, they offer spurious explanations, blaming local people. Derek Hooper, Barry.

'Why such hatred of my language?'

ISN'T it very sad that people like Peter Reed of Barry (Readers' Letters, The GEM, February 5), are expressing hatred of the Welsh language.

I was brought up in the Swansea Valley, where everybody spoke Welsh freely - and that goes for the other valleys as well.

What a brilliant upbringing it was. I'm very proud of my first language and to be insulted in this way degrades the language.

What does the writer know about the Welsh language? He needs to get a reality check and live in the real world.

The Welsh national anthem declares:

'O bydded i'r hen iaith barhau' (O may the old language continue).

And this is how it will be in my household. A Jones and family, Coychurch.

'Why so touchy about Welsh?'

WHY, oh why are the Anglo-Welsh so touchy? I am Anglo-Welsh - north Italian mother, a father from the Marches.

Although born in the same east Midlands city as Plaid's Lord Wigley (Derby - and in the same nursing home!) I have lived here since 1967, with breaks for university education and research in England, and work in Hungary and Italy.

I regard myself as Welsh, support Wales and try to speak my limited Welsh. I love languages, even 'dead' Latin. Why be so upset if someone wants to write, speak or print in Welsh?

When I first arrived in Wales to read law, I was astounded to meet a fellow undergraduate from west Wales who, at 12, had had to learn English as a foreign language - while I, in my grammar school, was trying to grasp French and German.

Languages - all of them - have their own unique qualities as a means of communication. If someone wants to speak Welsh, let them; it's called free speech!

Finally, when in 1969, I worked for the UN in Hungary, I worked alongside a Russian army officer.

Our only language in common was French for the whole summer, while we worked on a collective farm in the blistering summer heat.

It could have been Welsh!

Christopher Short, Barry.

Three good Samaritans!

I WOULD like to say a massive 'thank you' to the three male drivers who stopped to help me at 8.30pm on Valentine's Day in Port Road, when I had problems with a tyre.

Chivalry is alive and well in Barry!

Barry man is warned by judge after drugs offences

A secondhand car dealer who sold drugs to fund his own habit has been jailed for eight months, sentence suspended for two years at Cardiff Crown Court.

Anthony Cronin, 36, was also made subject to a supervision order for a year and ordered to carry out 200 hours unpaid work.

Cronin, of Treharne Road, Barry, admitted possessing cannabis with intent to supply and possessing cocaine.

by AJ SICLUNA

Judge Christopher Llewellyn-Jones, QC, told him: "You have to accept that the use of cannabis is unlawful. If you don't you could go to prison."

He said he had friends and a job. The judge told him: "Don't ruin your life, stop smoking drugs. I don't want to see you here again."

Cronin replied: "I don't want to see you again either."

Prosecutor Jason

Howells said that on October 10 the police searched the defendant's address and found a quantity of cocaine in a tin and cannabis worth £370 in street deals.

They also discovered £640 in cash.

Cronin said the cocaine was for personal use and at the time said the cannabis was also for personal use. The cash, he said, was to pay his rent.

His solicitor Adam Sharp said: "He is well thought of by friends and family, and in recent years has turned his life around."

The amounts of drugs involved, he said, were not great and there were few aggravating features in the case.

"There was certainly a lack of sophistication. He is in a good, stable relationship, and is addressing deficiencies in his behaviour. This is a case where the court can draw back from immediate imprisonment," Mr Sharp added.

ROGER'S LUNCH CLUB CHANGES PEOPLE'S LIVES 'Being blind doesn't mean life has to stop' says veteran

A Royal Artillery veteran, Roger Williams, has welcomed new research from the charity Blind Veterans UK.

In a survey commissioned by the charity, and conducted by YouGov, a major finding was that 65 per cent of the public recognise that going blind does not mean "a person's life is as good as over".

Roger, aged 68, spent

10 years in the Royal Artillery and is living proof that despite suffering from a disability life can go on.

He has 10 per cent sight in his left eye and is completely blind in his other. He lost his sight after he went into a coma due to a brain tumour.

Roger has been supported by Blind Veterans UK for 22 years.

He wanted to give something back to the charity as a way of saying thank you, and volunteers his time running a lunch club in Barry for people who are also supported by Blind Veterans UK.

He said: "I am fully behind the research findings. I feel my experience illustrates that being blind doesn't mean your life has to stop."

"The minute I started receiving support from the charity, a whole new world opened up to me. I set myself a task every day. Now I do all my own cooking, cleaning and washing."

"If you put your mind to it, there really is not much a blind person can't do that a sighted person can."

Roger spoke to his welfare officer who helped him track people down in the area who might like to get involved with the group.

He set up the lunch club six years ago and it now has 20 members who meet once a month.

Roger explained: "What gave me the inspiration to set up a local club was going to one of the main reunions that the charity organises for the veterans they support."

"I didn't know anyone and thought, there must be people in the area who are in the same position as me."

"The club has gone from strength to strength. Everyone gets along really well."

"We've been to the rehabilitation centre in Llandudno twice now. I have had endless support from Blind Veterans UK. They have been brilliant. I really cannot fault the charity in any shape or form."

Blind Veterans UK's 'Attitudes to Blindness' survey also found that 60 per cent of the general public do not see blindness as a barrier to being able to lead a happy and active life. It also found 81 per cent of the general public thought sight loss would not be an obstacle for blind or vision impaired people to start a new career.

The survey was conducted to mark the charity's centenary year.

Throughout 2015, Blind Veterans UK is celebrating its 100th birthday with over 100 national and local events planned - for more information, visit www.blindveterans.org.uk.

Speaker reveals the secrets of Newport's famous ship project

OVER 100 members of Sully U3A were present at the February meeting to hear Phil Cox talk about the medieval Newport ship.

Phil, a project volunteer and chair of the Friends of Newport Medieval Ship Project, told members how the timbers were unearthed in 2002 during excavations for the Riverfront Theatre, on the banks of the River Usk in Newport.

It is the most complete surviving example of a vessel from the 15th century and almost certainly carried trade goods between the Iberian Peninsula and Britain.

It is thought that it docked at Newport for repairs to a cracked mast, but for some reason the ship fell on to one side and there it lay until it was discovered seven metres down in the thick river mud.

The ship could not be lifted intact and it was removed, timber by timber, for preservation. It is hoped that the ship can be rebuilt and displayed in a permanent museum.

Phil showed slides of

the recovered timbers and a reconstruction of how the 36-metre long ship would have looked.

They have found the remains of food, shoes, pottery and coins including a French Petit Blanc, which was minted between May and July 1447. This would have been sealed into the timbers by the Master Shipwright for luck.

Chairman Jean Bispham thanked him for sharing the story of the ship and its preservation.

Sully U3A meets on the second Thursday of the month in The Old School, Sully at 2pm. On March 12, Mr David Tovey who will be giving a talk entitled 'For all the Tea in China', an insight into tea.

Sully U3A has many interest groups and the Knitters and Stitchers Group has recently made over 40 hats for newborn babies. The hats are to be donated to a local neonatal unit, as a gesture of thanks for the intensive nursing they give to babies in distress.

New members are welcome to come along to the monthly meeting.

Students go out and about on fieldwork

Recording details of rocks exposed in a small stream.

OVER two weeks recently, Barry Comprehensive's GCSE and AS level geology students have undertaken important fieldwork trips as part of their courses.

The GCSE geologists stayed at Broad Haven, Pembrokeshire, overnight and undertook two days of fieldwork looking at the rocks, minerals and fossils in the area. They visited Marloes Sands, Broad Haven, Newgale and Solva to investigate the geological history of the area.

The pupils will now complete a project in class that will account for 25 per cent of their final GCSE mark.

The AS group stayed in Ystradfellte in the Brecon Beacons and completed two busy days of fieldwork and data collection along the Upper Neath Valley. The range of data collected will now be used to complete an investigation into the environments of deposition in the area over geological time. The completed investigation will account for 33 per cent of their final AS level grade.

All of the students thoroughly enjoyed their visits and displayed a very mature attitude and strong work ethic at all times. Both groups were a credit to the school.

Mr Prickett thanks pupils, parents and the school for continuing to support these important visits, which allow the geologists of the future to gain essential practical experience.

Pubwatch relaunched in the town

A PUBWATCH scheme is being relaunched in Barry aiming to cut down on alcohol-related crime and disorder.

Pubs and clubs in the town have joined the scheme, which will involve establishments working together and being able to share information about drunken customers, or anyone who is asked to leave due to their behaviour.

PCSO Liz Pope said: "It's great so many licencees in the town are taking the issue of disorder seriously and are willing to work with the police to tackle it together."

"Successful Pubwatch schemes can make a big difference to a town and we hope this rejuvenated scheme in Barry will reduce incidents of violent crime and antisocial behaviour and make the town a nicer place to be in the evenings."

"When people go out socialising in the town, they want to be able to do so in a safe and trouble free environment."

The concept of Pubwatch is that members get together once or twice a month to share new ideas and talk about problems arising in their pubs.

Under the scheme, anyone found acting in a disorderly manner in licensed premises will be dealt with by the police and then issued with a ban by local landlords from entering all the pubs in the town.

Landlords in Barry have welcome the relaunch of the scheme.

John Phillips of Wetherspoon's in Barry added: "Pubwatch is very important for landlords, staff and patrons alike, as it offers some protection from violence and antisocial behaviour."

"It's important we all work together to prevent drunkenness in our establishments. We want our customers to know they are coming to a safe environment where they can have a relaxing time with their family and friends."

Should town bear brunt of new housing estates?

SHOULD the town of Barry be spared further major housing developments?

In 2012, a 20-year campaign to save the White Farm area from redevelopment was lost. A housing inspector gave the go-ahead for 177 houses, and now the estate is under construction.

Following the decision, Developers have also expressed an interest in the 'Vale Villages' group has campaigners complained that decisions were weighted too heavily in favour of house builders rather than the needs of local communities.

The final stage of redeveloping Barry people in the town Waterfront - and 2,000 believe the general trend is now one of an increasing population and fewer flats have facilities.

Communities out in the rural Vale have their concerns too; so much so Magistrates' Court.

Concerns too; so much so Magistrates' Court.

been formed.

There is a proposal in Cowbridge for 390 houses at Darren Farm, and two of the town's councillors opposing it wrote to The GEM saying: "We believe that the Vale Council should therefore look at further building in Barry and reconsider the development of the brownfield site at Llandow, instead of threatening the countryside and communities."

In 2011 the census put the UK population at around 63million - and the Office for National Statistics has estimated that the population could top 71million by 2030.

So the need for housing - and with it more roads, schools, shops and hospitals - is only going to increase, and all county councils in the UK, are under pressure to make sites available.

Nobody seems keen to accept hundreds or thousands of new houses in their community, whether it be large, established communities like Barry or smaller settlements like Cowbridge and Ystradowen in the rural Vale.

John tells Dinas Powys Probus of his life in sport

AT the February meeting of Dinas Powys Probus Club, member John Huw Williams gave a talk entitled 'My Life in Sport', an account of his own days playing rugby, and later as a school sports master, coaching and taking school teams to play around the world.

John was born in Ystalyfera, where his father was a miner and his mother a music teacher. After early schooling, John was a pupil at technical college at the same time as Gareth Edwards, later teaching at Essex and then at Cardiff Training College, now Cardiff Metropolitan University.

There, he was alongside Lyn Davies and Peter Radford, both Olympians in 1960, and David Nash, the then Welsh team coach and former British Lion. He began teaching at Penarth Secondary School and joined Cardiff RFC. He remembered his first try for the club at Pontypool in 1964.

The club made regular trips abroad and he recounted details of one to South Africa. The character in the team at that time was a certain Howard Norris. During the flight, Howard requested a glass of brandy, possibly to calm his nerves. As more and more brandy was drunk, Howard started to remove his clothing and ended up in only his string vest and wearing the pilot's cap.

Arriving at their destination, with Howard comatose, the local doctor, misdiagnosing the problem, prescribed a large glass of brandy. Howard soon recovered to join in the party.

John played more than 100 games for CRFC including playing in the Snelling Sevens, an international tournament. John's all-time favourite remains Barry John, who travelled with him to his first game for Cardiff in 1968, and he remembers how Barry was so nervous.

John eventually became sports master at St Cyres School in Dinas Powys and Penarth, and in 1966 led his first school skiing trip to Austria, at a cost of only £47, but 30 plus trips later, the cost had risen to £600. No one ever suffered an injury because he made everyone perform strengthening exercises before the trip.

Later, he concentrated on taking rugby teams to Vancouver and Seattle in 1982, 83, 87, 89 and 92, and Japan in 2006. In 1994, the team won every game during a tour of Australia.

He has special memories of visits to New Zealand in 1987 and in 1990, when again the team won every game. In 1995, the school team won the National Schools Sevens championship at Rosslyn Park, the only Welsh club that have ever done so.

John is the present chair of CRFC but steps down this year.

John regrets that there is not sufficient support by many schools to encourage all pupils, of whatever talent, to join in sports but is encouraged by the surge in the Olympics and Paralympics sports driven by our successes in the 2012 Olympics.

The vote of thanks was given by Graham Russell. CR

'Dazzling lights at night are a nightmare' says Cadoxton resident

DAZZLING street lights in a close in Barry are making a resident's life a misery.

Mrs Valerie Hicks said that a light in Ilminster Close in Cadoxton sheds a curious 'bluey glow' that is very unpleasant.

She has been in touch with the Vale Council to highlight her concerns.

"It's a small close with just two lights in it. When I open my front door, I have to shield my face from the light."

"The strange thing is that the bulb is white, but the light is blue. It is blue, blue light and vile."

by GEM REPORTER

Mrs Hicks understands the LED street lights are energy-saving units.

She says the light also intrudes into the bedroom making it difficult to sleep.

"I phoned the council to explain the situation and a man said he would come round to see about shielding the light from the house."

"You can't look up at them, they have a bluey glow."

She has been in touch with local councillor Richard Bertin who, she understands, has written a report on the unpopular lighting because of complaints by other people.

Mrs Hicks suffers from migraines and says the light can aggravate the condition.

Coun Richard Bertin said he has received complaints from some constituents.

He said: "I recently raised the issue of health and safety in a report via the Vale Council but this was ignored."

"Not only do LED lights affect sleeping patterns but in extreme cases can cause blindness and even cancer.

"The Vale Council should have carried out full independent risk assessments prior to implementation of these lights so it is now a case of 'I told you so!'"

Mike Clogg, the operational manager for highways, told The GEM the Vale Council had looked into the matter.

"The street light on Ilminster Close was recently replaced with one of our new LED lanterns."

"These modern street lights reduce the amount of energy required for street lighting and so help to reduce the council's carbon footprint as well as costs. These new lights also reduce light pollution by providing a directional light rather than a diffused glow and are installed at the optimum angle to efficiently light the road and pavement."

He added: "Mrs Hicks has raised a concern with us regarding the brightness of the street light. Following an inspection by one of our officers we are planning to address this by fitting a shield to the lantern that will deflect the light away from her property."

Snow and ice no deterrent for hardy ramblers

THE Met Office prediction for mist, snow and freezing conditions in the Black Mountains rang true as a group of nine walkers and leader William from the Penarth and District Ramblers set off for a chilly adventure up through Cwm Banw, which is just northwest of Llanbedr in the Grwyne Fechan valley.

Climbing first through mud then up the solid frozen hillside and into thick snow and fog, after stopping for refreshments and almost bumping into a vociferous black grouse, they ventured up through Tal Trwynau towards Pen Twyn Glas.

At the top of the glacial valley in very poor visibility with absolutely no hope of any surrounding views, and walking close together in single file along snowy paths, the highest point of the walk, Pen Allt-mawr standing at 719 metres loomed into view.

A slippery climb led to the trig point where the shelter of a stone cairn was much appreciated for a very rapid lunch break, as the cold northeasterly wind and freezing fog made everything turn white and fingers numb.

Care had to be taken while slithering along the ridge path above the escarpment as melting snow and ice created slippery muddy conditions, and upon reaching the eerily quiet trig point on Pen Cerrig-cach, their next objective was just about visible through the gloom.

A steep grassy track led downhill past pregnant mountain ponies to the distinctive outline of Crug Hywel, more commonly known as Table Mountain, and after taking a short break within the confines of the Iron Age hill fort, a further descent towards a boundary wall led them below the snowline and into warmer conditions.

Following undulating pathways on the lower slopes of Pen Cerrig-cach, fingers finally defrosted and the fog lifted – and with only a buzzard and red kite soaring high above them, a steep descent through fields led them safely back to their start point.

On February 21, meet 8.30am at Cogan for a 10-mile moderate/hard walk in the Pontcillil area; contact Barrie on 029 2053 0753.

Wear suitable clothing, preferably boots and carry waterproofs, food and drinks. Some degree of fitness is required and if you are in any doubt, then please contact the walk leader for advice.

Floral society

THE next meetings of Barry Floral Society will be held in St Nicholas Hall, St Nicholas Road, Barry, on Tuesday, February 24 when the demonstrator will be the well-known local florist Hilary West, and Tuesday, March 10, when Mrs Elizabeth Graham of Lower Machen will once again visit the club.

Both meetings commence at 2.15pm. New members are always welcome.

There are presentations galore at Camera Club's first meeting of the year 2015 began at Barry Camera Club with a 'chairman's evening' hosted by Mike Lewis, who gave a talk on its history from the time of its inception in 1901, through to the present day.

The talk was illustrated by some fascinating pictures taken from the club's archives, which caused some discussion on how photography has developed over the years, being affected by changes in processing, equipment, style and social pressures.

Many of the photographs obviously appeared dated, but it was clear that even given the limited resources of the era, there has been some exceptionally good photography at the club over the years.

On January 9, members were visited by Rob Mitchell, who gave a talk entitled 'A Can of Worms', which was well titled. His talk dealt with the nature of photography as an art form and his often forthright views caused much discussion.

The following week our guest, Nick Jenkins, gave a presentation entitled 'The Great Outdoors', a photographic journey through his travels.

This obviously inspired our natural history section, led by Phil Stillman, to get out and about with their cameras. Very early on February 18, they undertook a small expedition to the banks of the River Taff near Llandaff, joined by members of the 6th Barry Sea Scouts who are working towards gaining their photography badges.

The next presentation was a showing of images from the Cheltenham International Salon 2014, hosted by Brian Swinyard and colleague Martin Fry, covering the whole range of photographic subjects.

The month was wound up with our monthly competition with guest judge Keith Sharples.

First place for Mono prints was awarded to Glen Porter, who scored 20 points, with his urban shot 'Long Walk To Brussels Metro'. In second place with 19 points was Barbra Archdale-Smith with 'Prague Winter' and third place with 17 points went to Andrew Hallum for his 'Banjo Man'.

In the colour print section, Barbra Archdale-Smith bagged first place with 20 points for her 'Apparitions'. Roy Carr gained second place and 19 points with a fine landscape entitled 'Mountain Winter' and Frank Cleland took third place and 17 points, with his still-life shot 'Flowers For The Lady'.

Projected images also caused Keith difficulty in separating the winners from the also-rans, but he was able to award 20 points and first place to Phil Stillman for a semi-abstract treatment of an architectural subject entitled 'Curves And Shapes'.

Second place and 19 points went to Ken Mayled for his 'Coming Down' and a well deserved third place and 18 points was awarded to Tina Haydon for her 'Sospian Fach'.

Barry Camera Club meets every Friday from 7pm to 9.30pm at St Francis Millennium Centre, Porth-y-Castell, Barry Garden Suburb, Barry, CF62 6NX. For more information, visit our website www.barrycameraclub.co.uk.

Talk on India for local WI

THE Tuesday meeting of Highlight Park WI welcomed PCSO Russell Evans, who talked about his job and gave advice on what we could do to help and stay safe.

The monthly meeting speaker was Mrs Carol Evans from the Malarchi Poonchola Trust in India, which takes in children and supplies them with an education.

"This was a very interesting talk, and Highlight Park WI would recommend Mrs Evans as a speaker. Her talk left us all thinking and made us feel how lucky we were. The branch also gave Mrs Evans a cheque for the trust," a spokeswoman reported.

New members are welcome. Meetings are held on the first Tuesday of the month in Highlight Park Community Centre at 2pm, and on the third Thursday of the month at 7.15pm.

For more information, or for Mrs Evans' contact details, telephone 01446 734283.

VEIEWS SOUGHT ON NEW ONE-WAY STREET

PLAID CYMRU councillor Ian Johnson has arranged a public meeting for Sunday, February 22, in Alexandra Gardens, to allow residents to give their views on Vale Council proposals to introduce an experimental one-way scheme on Barry's Trinity Street.

Known internationally as the home of Stacey in the BBC series Gavin and Stacey, the council proposals will make the street one-way going northwards from the junction with Porthkerry Road and Montgomery Road towards Jenner Road, and one-way southwards to Broad Street.

Call over school site plans

A LOCAL councillor is calling for two applications to build on the former Ysgol Maes Dyfan site in Barry to go before the Vale Council's planning body.

"The first is for the redevelopment of the site for 48 dwellings, car parking and any associated works, and the second is for 34 dwellings, car parking and any associated works," Coun Richard Bertin said this week.

Coun Bertin, who represents the Court ward, added: "Given the amount of local public interest in this matter, I have asked for this to be brought before the full planning committee."

NICLAS' PICK!

He was also elected co-chair of the young person's panel, and joined the adult panel that is made up of professionals and officials from the National Assembly for Wales.

Professor Sally Holland was announced as the new Children's Commissioner for Wales on January 28.

Niclas said: "I'm very proud to have been involved in this process, and to have really contributed to something with such a high profile was a fantastic experience."

"It's encouraging to know that if you're willing to get involved in these sorts of things, there are some great opportunities available."

SYMPOSIUM HELD ON HUMAN TRAFFICKING

TWELVE members of group on human trafficking and modern day slavery, Dorian Elias, Soroptimist International Border Force officer based in Barry and District recently attended a symposium at the Aberavon Beach Hotel to raise awareness of human trafficking and modern day slavery.

The Symposium, organised by Soroptimist International Wales South, was supported by 150 Soroptimists from clubs across south Wales, together with representatives from immigration, Save the Children, Bawso and New Pathways. It featured presentations from Stephen Chapman, anti human trafficking co-ordinator for Wales, and Fiona Mactaggart MP, co-chair of the all-party Parliamentary group on human trafficking and modern day slavery, Dorian Elias, Border Force officer based in Pembroke Dock, Nici Evans from the Cardiff Partnership Board and Jeff Farrar, Chief Constable of the Gwent Police Force.

They gave sometimes harrowing insights into the nature and extent of illegal trafficking in people – globally this has become big business, turning over billions of dollars.

The meeting concluded with a panel session, chaired by the president of Soroptimist International of Great Britain and Ireland, Jenny Vince.

Last year, Soroptimists across Wales distributed 4,000 anti-trafficking stickers in association with the Welsh Government to help raise awareness that this could be happening in Wales.

News from Barry Men's Forum Insight into the Royal Hong Kong Auxiliary Air Force

Included in the picture are: John Rees-Davies treasurer, Ceri Harris speaker-secretary, Roger Davies technical support.

THE speaker last week at Barry Men's Forum, BMF speaker-secretary Ceri Harris spoke very interestingly, about the RHKAAF, whose crest includes a Dragon, but with Welsh style wings – thought to have been influenced by the Welsh governor in 1946.

Ceri started with a short history of the Crown colony of Hong Kong which came into being in 1841. The 100-year lease signed with China in 1898 did not include the whole of what we now know as Hong Kong, and when the lease ran out in 1998, the UK could have kept part of the Island, but the government decided to hand all the territories to China.

Ceri was appointed as a pilot to the RHKAAF in 1983, and had an exciting time flying numerous different types of aircraft, including Normander Islanders, Bulldogs, Titans, Dauphins, Super King Air and Slingsby, although he gave information on many other aircraft used before and after to his service career.

Their duties were numerous and included search and rescue, smuggling, including people smuggling (especially from Vietnam), aerial surveillance, fly-pasts and ceremonial duties.

A number of the aircraft were fitted with FLIR – Forward Looking Infrared Radar. He related how gambling was illegal in Hong Kong, but every evening a cruise ship would go 12 miles off shore, where they could gamble. On six occasions, people who had 'lost their shirts' gambling jumped overboard.

New members are welcome at the Trinity Presbyterian Church Hall, Aberystwyth Crescent on Thursday morning at 10.15am. The speaker, Gordon Roderick's topic is 'Swansea v Cardiff'. We are advised it does not refer to football, but to the universities.

Scarlets' rugby player found not guilty of punching man in nightclub

AFTER retiring for four-and-a-half hours, a jury at Cardiff Crown Court unanimously cleared a Scarlets rugby player of allegations that he punched a man to the head, fracturing a cheekbone, during an incident in a Porthcawl nightclub.

Kyle Evans, 24, said he believed Jamie Smith

was about to punch him and in self-defence "palmed" him in the face with his hand, above which was his arm in a splint.

Evans, of Beach Road, Pyle, was found not guilty of a charge of inflicting grievous bodily harm. Prosecutor Mike Hammett said Mr Smith and his then fiancée had gone to the Porthcawl Hotel and later went to Streets Nightclub to celebrate the 2014 New Year.

They were sitting down when a man stumbled into them, causing his drink to go over Mr Smith's friend.

Mr Smith spoke to the man and it was alleged that Evans went across to assist, lost his temper and struck him on the left cheek, fracturing it.

Evans left the premises and a short time later was arrested.

Detective Constable Hugh Lewis said that when he interviewed Evans, he said Mr Smith had been abusive and aggressive, and because he believed he was about to be struck, he "palmed" him in the face.

He denied at any time striking him with a clenched fist.

New tax powers will help meet housing needs...

LAST week, I tabled my supplementary Budget for this financial year for scrutiny and debate on March 10 in the Senedd; it accounts for changes that have been made to the Budget over the past year to meet priority areas and respond to pressures, such as in housing and health needs.

On the day I published the Budget, I announced an additional £5.8 million for social housing, which I allocated from our reserves to the delivery of affordable homes across Wales.

This includes funding for every local authority area in Wales, including £183,220 for the Vale of Glamorgan. In my statement accompanying this announcement, I said that investing in housing is a key part of our Wales infrastructure investment plan and will make a real difference to the lives of people across Wales, whilst also acting as an economic stimulus supporting growth and jobs.

On March 12, I look forward to welcoming Lesley Griffiths AM, Minister for Communities and Tackling Poverty, to the opening of the new social housing development on Thompson Street, with financial support from the Welsh Government.

Investing in housing is a key priority of the Welsh Government, so this latest announcement adds to

Jane Hutt AM (Minister for Finance)

the £5 million I approved in the autumn to support Home Improvement Loans.

Despite the significant financial constraints placed on our budgets, we will have invested an additional £10.8 million in housing from our reserves in 2014-15.

The Welsh Government has an ambitious target of building 10,000 affordable homes by May 2016 and we have already delivered almost 7,000 homes in this Assembly term.

We have also invested in the popular Help to Buy - Wales scheme, which helps first time buyers get a foot on the property ladder and we have supported local authorities with the Houses into Homes programme - bringing empty properties back into use as homes.

Lesley Griffiths AM also introduced the new Renting Homes (Wales) Bill last week, reminding us that one in three people now live in a rented home.

In her introduction to the Bill, she said it would result in much greater clarity and consistency in the rights and responsibilities of those who rent their homes, whether as a tenant or licensee, as well as the rights and responsibilities of landlords.

An important feature of this Bill is the help it will give to victims of domestic violence, targeting the perpetrators for evictions. The Bill also makes it possible for young people to rent, enhances succession rights and establishes a legal framework for supported housing.

Last week, I also launched the consultation for the new land transaction tax for Wales - the first Welsh tax for over 800 years.

In April 2018, the Stamp Duty Land Tax will be fully devolved to Wales and the income from this tax will be collected in Wales and will be the responsibility of the Welsh Government.

We are consulting on a replacement tax for Wales which affects people as home buyers and sellers, as builders and as businesses renting premises.

Already devolved to Scotland and with a major reform announced in the autumn statement by the UK Government, this tax will now be our responsibility.

We can help shape the new tax through this consultation with Assembly Members, passing this legislation in due course.

When I announced my principles for Welsh taxes, I made it clear that it is important to develop taxes which are fair to people and businesses and which support growth and jobs and help tackle poverty and support communities.

With new powers come new responsibilities - but the people of Wales can play their part in helping us to meet their needs.

Vale Council coffers receive a £1.2m performance bonus

THE Vale Council has been awarded a grant of £1.2m by the Welsh Government in recognition of its high achievement for the 2013/14 financial year.

A council spokesman said: "The award relates to the council's 'outcome agreement', which covers five key areas of the organisation's work - supporting the local economy, increasing school attainment, improving the lives of older people, improving social housing, and reducing landfill."

"Payment of the grant award to the council is according to the level of achievement of its outcomes, as outlined within the agreement with full achievement securing the council an incentive grant of £1,232,000 each year".

In his review of the Vale's performance for 2013/14, the Minister for Public Services, Leighton Andrews, found that the council had fully achieved its agreed targets in four of these areas and partially achieved the remaining one.

Coun Neil Moore, the Leader of the Vale Council, said: "Welsh Government's recognition of our success in all five of our key areas of work serves to demonstrate that this is a high-achieving local authority."

"This success is a testament to the hard work of our officers who are continuing to deliver high quality services in a time of unprecedented financial pressure."

Bethlehem gala concert proves an extra special charity occasion

WHEN every ticket is sold, it usually leads to something special and Saturday's charity concert at Bethlehem Church, Cefn Cribwr was exactly that.

Bridgend Male Choir had invited the Rhondda's Parc & Dare Brass Band to share the concert and it turned out to be an inspired choice.

The choir started with a Welsh selection, which included a rousing performance of John Guard's 'Men of Harlech' and moved into an opera and European selection, which included Verdi's 'Bandit's Chorus' and Kurt Lissman's 'Aus De Traube'.

Under musical director, Andrew Jones, the band entertained with Andrea Lewis's flugel horn solo from 'Over the Rainbow' and the uplifting Shostakovich March from 'Suite for Variety Orchestra No 1'. The band completed three more items, and the first half drew to a close with the choir and band coming together to perform 'Llanfair'.

Comper Gareth Davies explained the connection between choir and band, with the choir's musical director, Rhiannon Williams-Hale and chorister husband Terry also being members of the band.

The choir continued with mixed items including 'Bui Doi' from Miss Saigon, featuring tenor soloist, Paul Carter.

Parc & Dare also entertained with aplomb. Gareth Maidment's euphonium solo by Welsh composer, Karl Jenkins, 'Benedictus' from The Armed Man was worth the entrance money alone, as was Jerry Herman's popular 'Hello Dolly', when the musicians sang along, as well as playing one verse.

The Armstrong & Snodlaigh 'Gwerzy' arranged by Brendan Breslin, was fantastic, building to a musical crescendo, followed by another treat.

Many had never seen the very large and complex marimba (a xylophone type instrument) which was played by teenagers, Alex Maxted and Nathaniel Alcolado in their rendition of Evelyn Glennie's 'Little Prayer'. A standing ovation followed before the band and choir closed proceedings with the ever popular 'Gwahoddiad'.

Comper, Gareth Davies, had earlier acknowledged the work of chorister, Tom James, a Cornelly resident and choir president, Paul Porter in pulling this concert together. Paul, a Prostate Cymru ambassador, expressed his delight with the evening's fundraising. Choristers wish the band every success at the Welsh Open Brass Band competition in Porthcawl next weekend.

London Labour pledges to hand over fracking powers to Welsh Government

THE Welsh Government's moratorium on fracking could only last a few months – were Labour to win the May general election.

In a statement issued Monday (February 16) Labour said that – if elected – it will devolve powers to Wales that will enable the Welsh Government to make any decisions on fracking.

The statement said: "Licencing powers relating to the extraction and exploitation of onshore shale gas will be devolved following a Labour victory in May, giving the people of Wales full power over fracking."

"In the meantime, Planning Minister Carl Sargeant will put an immediate moratorium on fracking in Wales."

Vale AM Jane Hutt said: "I welcome Labour's fracking pledge; the devolution of licensing powers to Wales will give us more control on this important issue and a moratorium addresses the continuing uncertainties surrounding the controversial fracking process."

The Conservative Leader and regional AM, Andrew RT Davies, welcomed the decision to impose a moratorium on fracking.

However, he said that the move should be coupled with a community right to 'opt-in' where fracking was welcomed, but stressed the need to ensure that local residents' views were paramount in any discussions on shale gas extraction, or 'fracking'.

He noted that three sites in the Vale already have planning permission for test drilling, but these will be subject to the moratorium.

Mr Davies said: "For some time, I have been calling on the Welsh Government to bring forward robust guidance for local authorities on fracking and the decision to introduce a moratorium is a sensible one.

"It is clear that shale gas exploitation has a contribution to make to a long-term economic plan for Wales' energy generation, but until its impact on our environment and homes is properly assessed, we need a moratorium."

"I have met with community groups opposed to fracking in the Vale on numerous occasions and clearly they will be delighted with this announcement."

"The views of the local people likely to benefit from fracking, or who will be affected by fracking, must be paramount and that's why I believe that communities should have a say, including a right to 'opt-in' where schemes are welcomed by residents."

A spokesman for Mr Davies added that the Conservative Leader favoured devolving powers relating to fracking to Wales, and that discussions with Westminster on the matter were "ongoing".

Local solicitors promote the Free Will Writing Service with Marie Curie Nurses Sue Sullivan and Mags Cawthorn and Phae Comber-Jones, Marie Curie Legacy Advisor.

Marie Curie promotes free Will writing offer

MARIE CURIE has joined forces with solicitor firms in the Vale of Glamorgan and Cardiff to offer a free Will writing scheme to people aged 55 years and over.

Representatives from Griffiths Ings Property Lawyers, Leo Abse and Cohen Solicitors, Lucas Law Solicitors, Passmore Solicitors and Wendy Hopkins Family Law Practice visited the Marie Curie Cardiff & the Vale Hospice in Penarth earlier this month as part of a partnership to offer the Marie Curie free Will writing scheme.

The initiative, which runs until Thursday, April 30, offers people the opportunity to make or amend a basic Will, with the option to include a gift to support Marie Curie's work in the future. Gifts in Wills fund the equivalent of one in two Marie Curie nurses, supporting their work across Wales and in the Cardiff & The Vale Hospice.

Among those to have

Geoff Mortimer has decided to leave a gift for Marie Curie in his Will. His late wife, Jenny, was also a supporter of the charity.

already taken advantage of the Marie Curie free Will writing scheme is long-time supporter Geoff Mortimer of Llantwit Major.

Choosing to leave a gift to Marie Curie in his Will was an easy decision for Geoff, whose late wife Jenny was a prolific fundraiser for Marie Curie before losing her battle with cancer in 2009. Geoff has since taken over the fundraising mantle, becoming one of Wales' most dedicated volunteers.

Explaining his decision to leave a gift to Marie Curie in his Will, Geoff explained: "It's something that you can do without it affecting your finances immediately. I can leave a goodly sum to Marie Curie in my Will, but I couldn't donate that money now because my assets are tied up in my house. I can be generous and know it won't affect my family in the future. My children know about it and are fully in favour of it."

"Only last week I managed to convince one of my friends to sign up to the free Will service, and I would encourage others to do the same."

Phae Comber-Jones, legacy advisor for Marie Curie, said: "Using our free Will writing service will ensure you can get a basic Will written by a solicitor and guarantee that your family, friends and others benefit exactly as you wish."

"Although there is, of course, no obligation to do so, leaving a gift to Marie Curie in your Will can help ensure that our nurses can continue to provide free care and support to people with a terminal illness, and their families, in Wales."

For more information about the Free Will Writing Scheme or to learn more about this special way of remembering the charity, please contact Legacy Advisor, Phae Comber-Jones. Email: phae.comber-jones@mariecurie.org.uk or telephone: 02920 426045 or 07545 422683.

How to 'upcycle' old and tired items of furniture

THE St Nicholas Women's Institute February meeting in St Nicholas Church hall opened with an introduction to chalk painting techniques.

Jan Williams had brought along two small bedside cupboards to demonstrate what could be achieved – one which she had painted earlier and the other to show how easily she had created such an attractive piece of furniture.

Jan explained that this type of paint was an ideal way to upcycle old and tired wooden items and give them a new lease of life.

Sanding or stripping was rarely necessary and the paint was suitable for use on other surfaces, too. Members were full of ideas for their own kitchen chairs, chests and cupboards.

After refreshments, president Fran Mitchell noted news in the federation letter. Agreement was reached for an outing in June and another in August and a visit to a restaurant in Barry to celebrate the WI centenary.

Plans are also in hand for a vintage tea party in July to raise funds for charity, with members raiding old trunks and wardrobes for fashion ideas.

The meeting on March 5 will celebrate our Welsh Heritage.

AM launches Daffodil Appeal

VALE AM Jane Hutt sponsored the launch of Marie Curie's Great Daffodil Appeal on February 11 in the Senedd in Cardiff Bay, see article on page 17.

The Great Daffodil Appeal, Marie Curie's flagship fundraising drive, encourages people to donate to the appeal and wear an iconic daffodil during February and March.

Jane Hutt said: "It gives me immense pride to wear my daffodil and support the charity's 2015 Great Daffodil Appeal. I hope people across Wales will donate and wear a daffodil and help Marie Curie continue to make a real difference to people living with a terminal illness in Wales."

To find out how you can get involved in the Great Daffodil Appeal visit www.mariecurie.org.uk/daffodil or call 0845 601 3107.

NEWS FROM THE FONMON APIARY

Bee patient and get ready for a challenge!

NOT much sign of external bee activity just yet, but this is due to the low temperatures we are experiencing.

Spring is beginning to reveal itself and some blossoms are available to the bees. The days are decidedly longer now and given warmer days (at least 10°C) the colonies will respond and a new season will be under way.

There have been days when external bee activity was observed, but this was the bees taking cleansing flights—i.e. voiding their bowels; the bees can retain their body waste for a considerable time and keeping the hive clean is something they strive to do.

No doubt some colonies will not have made it through the winter. Varroa mites could well be one cause, another is the internal parasite Nosema, and this will weaken a colony and bring about its demise.

Starvation is yet another element that can bring a colony down.

Preparing a colony of bees for the winter requires input from the beekeeper. Sufficient stores are a must and you have to provide supplementary food, if on one of your inspections your experience tells you that the colony is not sufficient to meet the winter ahead.

The summer of 2014 was a good one for all insects. Fonmon bees gathered in plenty of nectar and pollen, so very little feeding has had to be done. Bees settling down for the winter will not have the busy life their sisters had, who being active every day were lucky to live for about six weeks.

Our winter bees, by contrast, should survive for five months or more.

So, the beekeeper has done her/his best to prepare the colonies – will we get a good spring? Will we get a good summer? Will all the colonies have survived? As ever, we have to be optimistic and be patient. Plenty of challenges await any newcomer to the craft of beekeeping, but it is a worthwhile activity and the bees need all the help we can give them.

HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Is anyone looking to share a life of Riley?

STAFF at Dogs Trust Bridgend were hoping that Valentine's Day would bring a lifelong female companion for 11-year-old Riley, who is on the hunt for a family home which he can share with a gentle female dog.

Riley the Jack Russell Terrier is quite the ladies' man and has been pulling on the heartstrings of a number of female canines at the rehoming centre, but has so far failed to meet that perfect person to take him home.

He's not a fan of male dogs and is always kennelled with female companion who can keep him on his toes and become a lifelong partner.

"Riley is a super sweet boy, who really needs a kind female dog he can settle into family life with. He needs a loving family who will understand his needs and support his blossoming friendship."

Call our Bridgend Rehoming Centre on 0300 303 0292. We are open every day between 12pm-4pm, apart from Wednesdays, or visit the centre at Court Colman, Pen-Y-Fai, Bridgend, Mid Glamorgan, CF31 4NG. Linda Feagan, Dogs Trust Bridgend Supporter Relations Officer.

National Assembly beats Commons and Lords in rugby clash

THE National Assembly's rugby team swept aside the House of Commons and Lords at Cardiff Arms Park in a resounding 33-12 victory, in what was dubbed the 'real' Wales-England showdown.

The politicians returned to the Senedd and Westminster battered and bruised – but boosted by the thousands raised for Bowel Cancer UK from their Parliamentary clash.

It was the curtain-raiser to the Six Nations clash between Wales and England. The event marked the ninth annual fixture to raise money for Bowel Cancer UK.

And it was the hosts who emerged triumphant, with the National Assembly XV outplaying their Commons and Lords counterparts to claim a 33-12 win, their fourth in a row.

After leading 19-0 at half time at Cardiff Arms Park, the hosts had to withstand a comeback from the Westminster side before they eased away in the fourth quarter.

Andrew RT Davies, the Conservative leader of the opposition in the Assembly, said he was delighted with the performance of his side – particularly their fifth try, a team effort which went straight through the London visitors' defensive line.

Mr Davies was joined in the Assembly side by Plaid Cymru's Ynys Môn AM Rhun Iirorwerth, who lined up – appropriately – on the left wing.

Assembly rugby chairman, Andrew RT Davies AM, said:

"Over the years the team has raised more than £10,000 for Bowel Cancer UK and I am proud to be involved.

"The Assembly team was set up in 2006 by Glyn Davies, who was an AM at the time.

"Glyn overcame bowel cancer and wanted to raise awareness of the disease and personally demonstrate how survivors could go on to lead a full and active life after being so ill. I think that's a message we can all support."

"On behalf of Assembly rugby I would also like to thank Cardiff Blues for making the stadium available to us."

Deborah Alsina, chief executive of Bowel Cancer UK commended the teams and the game organisers on their work saying,

"We are incredibly grateful to the National Assembly Rugby team for their support over the years, it means a lot to us. Over 41,500 people are diagnosed with bowel cancer every year and it remains the UK's second biggest cancer killer."

BOOK WORMS WANTED!

VOLUNTEERS are being sought to work in the Oxfam Shop in Penarth, which has recently had an influx of book donations.

Jayne Luxton, shop manager, said: "It's brilliant that we have had so many books donated recently. Now we urgently need new volunteers to help us.

"They will need to be able to volunteer for at least a half day a week, and be willing to be trained by our current book volunteer team".

Contact Jayne Luxton on 029 2070 6358 for further information.

Cardiff and Vale college provides unrivalled facilities

STUDENTS studying at Cardiff and Vale College (CAVC) from September will be among the first to benefit from a £45m investment into sector-leading education and training facilities for the region.

In the heart of the city centre, just a five-minute walk from Cardiff Central Station, the college's brand new city centre campus will become home to unrivalled facilities including a science, technology, engineering and maths (STEM) centre; a performance theatre; recording studios; Apple design studios; commercial salon and spa; employment and progression centre; fine dining training restaurant and world-class teaching and learning space.

One of the largest colleges in the country, CAVC has 20,000 people studying across sites in Cardiff and the Vale every year.

A CAVC spokesperson said: "The success of those students has continued to go from strength to strength with 86 per cent of learners achieving their main qualification in 2014 – one of the best records in the sector."

Having chosen from the range of 29 different AS and A-Level subjects on offer – from law and graphic design to business studies and chemistry – Cameron Patterson is just one of the 750 students from last year who went on to study at universities across the UK.

"When I moved back from China I had a few options in terms of where to study," said the former A-Level student.

"After speaking with my family and hearing about the excellent quality of teaching and friendly atmosphere, as well as taking a look at the college website, I knew Cardiff and Vale College was the place for me.

"My main goal was to get into university and with the help of tutors, as well as the large range of resources available, it's made the process a straightforward one. I now have a place to study a four-year MSc course in Natural Sciences at Lancaster University, one of the top 10 universities in the UK."

For Sofia Stewart, opting for one of the large range of career-focused courses proved to be the right path for her; helping to not only develop her skills but to also provide her with the right qualifications and experience to progress straight into a career.

"It all started with my diploma in engineering and design which I also studied at Cardiff and Vale College," said the BSc Aircraft Engineering student.

"When I spoke to someone about work experience, they strongly recommended the college's IATA facility. I work on real aircraft as part of the course!

"I've met really influential people in my time here. They've shown me how important and rewarding this career can be."

Book your place for September and follow in the footsteps of the 78 per cent of last year's learners who progressed on to further study, university or employment within just two months of completing their studies – you could be next!

Marie Curie's Great Daffodil Appeal launched at the Senedd

MARIE CURIE'S annual Great Daffodil Appeal is officially under way in Wales after a launch event at the Senedd in Cardiff Bay last week.

The Great Daffodil Appeal is Marie Curie's flagship fundraising campaign, and this year's appeal was launched by Deputy Health Minister, Vaughan Gething AM, and Marie Curie's chief executive Dr Jane Collins.

Each year the appeal encourages people to donate and wear the charity's iconic daffodil throughout February and March. Money raised through the Great Daffodil Appeal helps fund the charity's work supporting people living with a terminal illness, and their families, throughout Wales as well as in the Cardiff and The Vale Hospice in Penarth.

The event provided a stage to showcase some of the charity's work in Wales, including the innovative 'South Wales Helper Service'.

The initiative sees volunteers paired with people affected by terminal illness, offering

Those in attendance heard from Jo Parry, who runs the South Wales Helper Service, as well as Jenny Latham, who is currently receiving support from a helper volunteer.

The event also saw some of Wales' top fundraising volunteers honoured for their efforts supporting the charity. The 'Outstanding Contribution to Fundraising in Wales' award was presented to the CarTen100 group, who raised more than £82,000 for Marie Curie through their annual 100-mile Cardiff to Tenby charity cycle ride.

Meanwhile, Arlene Smith was named as Fundraiser of the Year (west Wales), Barbara Norbury won the Fundraiser of the Year (north Wales) title and Fundraiser of the Year (south Wales) was accepted by Wyndham Perkins on behalf of the Perkins family.

Simon Jones, head of policy and public affairs, Wales for Marie Curie, said: "We are pleased to have the support of our Assembly Members as we launch this year's Great Daffodil Appeal – an appeal that raises vital funds to support our work in homes across Wales, as well as the Cardiff and The Vale Hospice in Penarth.

"Every year the people of Wales never cease to amaze us with their generosity and support for our Great Daffodil Appeal, and I'm sure this year will be no different as people recognise the importance of the work we carry out.

"On behalf of Marie Curie, I would like to thank all those who continue to donate and enable us to keep supporting people affected by terminal illness across Wales."

EXTEND YOUR HOME FOR GREATER LIGHT AND SPACE

Inspired by Renaissance architecture the Loggia fuses the best of modern technology with classic Italian design.

Twice as energy efficient as a traditional conservatory, the Loggia styled living room offers much of the versatility of a traditional extension but with a greater sense of light and space. Outside it exudes elegance and solidity, while inside there's a flexible, modern living space that can be used, comfortably, all year round.

The extraordinary energy efficiency of the Loggia comes in part from the innovative, super-insulated, columns, which are up to five times more thermally efficient than brick.

Added to this, ultra-thermally efficient glass is used throughout, designed to retain heat during winter and reflect it outwards in the summer months. For even more heat efficiency, there is even an option to choose a solid roof.

Inside, the Loggia delivers a combination of crisp, plastered walls, striking columns, cleverly concealed heaters, glazing and modern lighting, creating a clean and contemporary space that really is made for modern living.

Best of all, this is an extension that can be quick to construct, taking far less time than a traditional orangerie. In fact you could be opening the doors of your Loggia before barbecue season is in full swing.

Top chefs help to raise 125k for Ty Hafan on a tasty gourmet night!

A SMALL army of star chefs from in and around Wales have successfully raised over £125,000 for Ty Hafan Children's Hospice in the 'Chefs' Night Out' dinner at Cardiff's Parc Thistle Hotel.

The event included an auction of chef's services, which raised £95,000, with 2014 Masterchef Champion Ping Coombes receiving the highest bid of £15,000, to create a dinner party at the bidder's home.

The 14-strong culinary cast of chefs volunteering their time and skills included top chefs Hywel Jones, James Sommerin, Stephen Terry and Will Holland.

Hosted and supported by The Parc Thistle Hotel for the second time, the event, which is organised by David Loosemore and Huw Edwards, has now raised over £425,000 for Ty Hafan since its first staging in 2010.

David Loosemore, whose eight-year-old daughter, Bella, also benefits from the charity's services, said: "The night went incredibly smoothly and that is thanks to our dedicated team and the skill and camaraderie of our chefs."

"We have raised a vast amount of money for this wonderful cause and Huw and I can't thank our team enough. Special mention must also go to our guest of honour, Katie Palmer, who regularly attends Ty Hafan."

Her words touched the room and I'm sure contributed to bidders digging that little bit deeper."

Huw Edwards said: "We would like to offer a huge thank you to all the amazing chefs, the suppliers, the hotel and, of course, all of the guests who have helped to raise an incredible amount for Ty Hafan."

Ben Underwood, general manager of The Parc Thistle Hotel said: "We are absolutely thrilled to have supported Chefs' Night Out and are so chuffed with the amount raised. It is particularly fitting for us, as Ty Hafan is our official charity this year, we couldn't be happier with this success."

Teenager Katie Palmer and her mum, Lisa, from Tonyrefail were two other very special guests. Katie, 17, was referred to Ty Hafan when she was 13 and describes the children's hospice as: "A wonderful, loving place and every member of staff is so truly welcoming and comforting."

Katie suffers from a life-threatening heart condition called hypertrophic cardiomyopathy and has been in and out of hospital hundreds of times since she was a baby.

She enjoyed a makeover before the event thanks to John Lewis and the Vanilla Rooms in Cardiff and Stardust Boutique in Swansea.

Jeremy Jackson, Ty Hafan's director of fundraising and marketing, said: "Chefs' Night Out is an innovative event providing guests with an exclusive, world-class gourmet experience, combined with an opportunity to support the vital work of Ty Hafan."

"The success of the event is dependent on the generosity of top chefs, many of whom possess Michelin Stars; Welsh businesses and, of course, the great Welsh public. Inspired by Ty Hafan's care for his daughter Bella, David and his close friend Huw have created an exceptional fundraising event that has already raised in excess of £425,000 for Ty Hafan."

"This is a phenomenal contribution and Chefs' Night Out is making a significant difference to the care we can provide. We are incredibly grateful for their unstinting commitment to, and support for, Ty Hafan."

The Chefs' Night Out 2015 line-up was: James Sommerin – Restaurant James Sommerin; Stephen Terry – The Hardwick; Roger Jones – The Harrow at Little Bedwyn; Duncan Barham – The Grove; Will Holland – Coast; Hywel Jones – Lucknam Park Hotel and Spa; Richard Davies – Manor House Hotel; Will Guthrie – Buckland Manor; Bryan Webb – Tyddyn Llan; Sian Rees – Sosban; Mark Jordan – Ocean Restaurant at the Atlantic Hotel and Mark Jordan at the Beach; David Kelman – Ellenborough Park; and Ping Coombes – special guest chef and Masterchef Champion 2014; Matt Smith – Llys Meddyg (Newport) Pembrokeshire.

Much-anticipated adaptation is Fifty Shades of boredom!

IT'S no surprise when a best-selling book finds its way onto cinema screens, but when a best-selling book becomes a phenomenon, then the chances of that book becoming a film are even higher.

It's happened to Harry Potter, it's happened to Twilight, it's happened to The Hunger Games, and now (with a different audience in mind) it has happened to Fifty Shades of Grey.

EL James' steamy series has sold over 100 millions books worldwide, with the arrival of the film eagerly awaited by its readers.

It tells the story of Anastasia Steele (Dakota Johnson), a literature student who interviews wealthy Christian Grey (Jamie Dornan). When they spark, they embark upon a relationship that soon takes a turn for the interesting when Anastasia discovers Christian's penchant for being in control...

A quick note to the marketing bods; films are traditionally released on a Friday – so when the marketing for Fifty Shades of Grey states proudly the film opens

'on Valentine's Day' this is a blatant mistrust.

Perhaps the fact that the film opened on Friday the 13th is more apt, as it is a pretty abject film – painfully dull, nowhere near as racy as you have been told, and it falls short in nearly all departments.

The fact that the book's origins lay in Twilight fan-fiction is incredibly apparent here; missing that series' reliance on long, 'smouldering' looks? Well there's plenty to savour here in lieu of any real dialogue that pushes the story on – after all, why bother with words when a lip being bitten or a cold hard stare can do so much more?

You almost feel for the talent involved in this, as they try to make something worthy, yet fall short. It doesn't help that the man the film is built around is the ubiquitous Mr Grey, is filled out by a badly miscast Jamie Dornan.

Dornan is a decent actor, but he seems out of place and awkward at times, sometimes looking like a 15-year-old boy who has been told to take the bins out else he won't get any pocket money. He tries, but ultimately it's not enough, lacking the detached coldness that

by GARETH JAMIESON
Follow Screen
Talk on Twitter –

the character should have in order to convince you, and instead being a controlling bore.

His co-star Dakota Johnson fares a little better; initially her character's awkwardness grates as Johnson struggles to give the simpering Anastasia any personality; but as the character comes out of her shell, so too does Johnson, and she offers a solid turn that hints at potential – her performance undone by having her do very little other than remove her clothes.

Sam Taylor-Johnson's direction is suitably artistic, if a little lacking in substance, while Kelly Marcel's script is stuffed full of dialogue that, as Harrison Ford once said to George Lucas, "you can type... but you can't say it".

The film's story is basically a contract negotiation, which is as painfully dull as it sounds, with sub-plots teased and referenced without coming close to any sense of resolution.

Mr Grey has 'business problems' (the main problem being that no-one knows just what it is he actually does), a meeting with a figure from his past goes unseen and passed over despite being key to the plot.

The expansion of these wouldn't have cured all of the film's ills, but would have made for a more layered story.

Even the much hyped sex scenes fail to really spark, with the film lacking the highly-charged nature of, say, 9½ Weeks and being far too stylised; there is no immediacy, no palpable passion, instead the key foundation of the whole shebang flounders due to its sterilised and over-stylised nature.

Oddly for a film whose target audience is women, there is little equality in terms of nudity, with Johnson laid bare (literally) for all to see while Dornan simply removes his shirt a few times; in fact the entire film's message feels curiously off-kilter – Grey may seem to be in charge but as the film progresses it's Anastasia who holds the power, thus making Grey quite a poor dominant when you think about it.

Fans of the book will no doubt lap up James' leaden prose made into live-action – and with the film having pocketed a very impressive $235 million worldwide in its opening weekend, then expect to see the other two books from the series on the big screen sooner rather than later – but Fifty Shades of Grey's woeful and dull story will earn no praise from the uninitiated.

VERDICT – A shockingly poor film, that has no engaging story nor dialogue, Fifty Shades of Grey is a film that seems intent on shocking but ends up being as sexy as a wet lettuce. Jamie Dornan is miscast, Dakota Johnson impresses, but the lingering aftertaste of the film is trashy and boring. Avoid at all costs.

SEE THIS IF YOU LIKED: Nine ½ Weeks (1986), Twilight (2008).

Local Lions hand £500 cheque to the Vale Foodbank

Mike Grove (Foodbank treasurer), Susan Lloyd Selby (Foodbank), John Wordley (Lions president) and Ceri Caterina Davies (Foodbank).

AS the Vale Foodbank passes the milestone of providing free emergency food parcels to almost 10,000 local people in crisis, it was visited by John Wordley, president of the Llantwit Major and Cowbridge Lions, who presented the charity with a cheque for £500.

Receiving the cheque on behalf of the foodbank, Susan Lloyd Selby said: "The Lions is a wonderful organisation, consisting of volunteers who raise money and do whatever they can to help their local community."

"Here in the Vale, they support a huge number of local causes, including diabetic screening, the Big Wrap and the British Legion. "As the number of people seeking help from the foodbank continues to rise, we are incredibly grateful to the Llantwit Major and Cowbridge Lions for their support."

Speaking on behalf of the Lions, John Wordley praised the Foodbank's work and the dedication of all the volunteers involved.

He said: "The Lions support humanitarian causes across the world, from our Sight First programme which is aiming to prevent and cure blindness in the Third World, to supporting young people from the Vale to work with disadvantaged children in Venezuela and India, but we also recognise and respond to needs on our doorstep.

"We are delighted to be able to support the Vale Foodbank and hope this donation will enable them to continue to ensure no-one need go hungry in the Vale."

NOT A WELLY IN SIGHT AS GARDENERS CELEBRATE!

BARRY garden owners attended a Mayor's Fairtrade coffee morning last week – to celebrate the hard work they do each year to open their gardens for the National Gardens Scheme.

Leaving their wellies at home, Dave Bryant, (on left in picture) and Debbie Palmer, (right) enjoyed a rest from gardening with the Mayor of Barry Council, Coun Jeff Evans.

They are looking forward to opening their gardens on July 19, which promises a great day out for garden lovers!

The Glamorgan branch of the National Gardens Scheme raised over £35,000 last year, giving about £32,000 to the NGS, which supports charities such as Macmillan Nursing and Marie Curie, and £3,500 to local charities.

Niamh wins battle for vital operation

Celebrating the good news – dad Chris, Alun Cairns MP, Niamh Hurn, mum Michelle and sister Jazmin.

A nine-year-old Barry primary school pupil has won her battle to undergo a £30,000 operation to help her walk.

Niamh Hurn was in a race against time because the medical advice was that the procedure – selective dorsal rhizotomy – needed to be done before she was 10 years old.

The GEM featured Niamh's plight four years ago. Her spinal condition has meant that her movement has had to be assisted and supervised.

But that is about to change, and mum Michelle and dad Chris are thrilled.

Michelle said: "Niamh and the family are really excited. The operation will mean she will be much more independent and able to grow into a young lady.

by GEM

"We will be talking to Bristol Children's Hospital on Wednesday or Thursday to get a final date.

"When she goes in, it will be for two to three weeks. Fortunately, both of our employers are accommodating.

"We want to thank Alun (the local MP) and his team – without them we couldn't have achieved this."

Niamh will be one of the first children in Wales to undergo the surgery, which is being funded by NHS Wales.

Mr Cairns had previously backed the Hurn family campaign, which aimed to get enough in donations to fund the operation privately – over £16,000 has been raised.

Mr Cairns also contacted the local health board to raise the issue over the need for Niamh to receive the operation before her 10th birthday in December 2015.

Mr Cairns said: "I am absolutely thrilled at the news that Niamh will get the much-needed operation in the spring. We have been working hard for several months to get the operation approved on the NHS.

"The Hurn family are a credit to the community – they have done an incredible amount of fundraising, and to see how happy the family were upon receiving the news is already a highlight of my year."

You too could become a 'Dementia Friend'!

DURING the first two weeks of February, I ran 'Dementia Friends' sessions for the 1st Llantwit Major Cubs and Scouts and made 22 Dementia Friends.

A Dementia Friend is someone who has attended a one-hour information session and has committed to an action that will make the lives of people living with dementia a little better.

Every action counts – spreading the word about dementia, spending time with a friend or family member who has dementia, recommending becoming a Dementia

Friend to others.

Dementia Friends is an Alzheimer's Society-led initiative, funded by the Department of Health and the Cabinet Office.

It aims to increase dementia awareness and change the way the nation thinks, talks and acts about dementia and is part of the Prime Minister's 'Challenge on Dementia'. The target for the initiative is to make one million Dementia Friends across the UK. Currently, there are almost 900,000 Dementia Friends.

I became a Dementia Champion in May 2014 – that means a volunteer who has undertaken additional Dementia Friends information briefings to be able to deliver the relevant sessions.

Since May last year, I have delivered 16 sessions and made 236 Dementia Friends. Throughout March and April this year I have more sessions planned and, hopefully, many more Dementia Friends to make.

To find out more about the Dementia Friends initiative, go to dementiafriends.org.uk/ and consider becoming a Dementia Friend or Dementia Champion.

Marie Curie opens a new Carers' Café

THE Marie Curie hospice in Penarth is set to host a new Carers' Café – for people caring for someone with a terminal illness.

It will provide the opportunity for carers to meet in an informal setting and chat over a cake and a cuppa and the first session will be held on Tuesday, March 3 between 2pm and 4pm, with subsequent sessions held on the first and last Tuesdays of every month.

The café will be led by hospice staff, and will also be supported by a community nurse and a social worker.

The initiative is part of the charity's successful Caring for Carers project, funded by the Big Lottery Fund.

Susan Court, who manages the three-year project, said: "We decided to introduce this new session after identifying a lack of social groups for carers in and around Cardiff and the Vale of Glamorgan. If you have an hour or two to spare, why not drop in? It's free to attend and you don't need to book in advance.

"For Carers' Café we want to create somewhere people can meet others and share their experience, find helpful information, or just have some time to themselves."

For more information about the Carers' Café, please contact Sarah Johnson on 02920 426023 or email sarah.johnson@mariecurie.org.uk.

STUDENTS CATER FOR ROTARIAN GUESTS IN STYLE

President-elect Paul Halstead, with the Vale Mayor and Mayoress and catering students at Cardiff and Vale College.

BARRY Rotarians and guests, including the Mayor and Mayoress of the Vale, Howard Hamilton and Margaret Hamilton, enjoyed a meal prepared and served by catering students of Cardiff and Vale College in the Glamorgan Suite of the Colcot Road Campus last week.

President-elect Paul Halstead congratulated the students and paid tribute to the Vale and Barry Town councils for their continued support for the Rotary Club's annual Fireworks Fiesta held on November 5.

The club continues to make monthly donations to the local foodbank; plans are well in hand to celebrate St David's

Day with an early breakfast on Friday, February 27 at St Andrew's Golf Club, and underprivileged children will be taken to Brean Sands in June, as part of Rotary's Nation Kids Out programme.

None of these events would be possible without the continued support of public, for which the Rotary Club of Barry is very grateful.

Planning procedure in Wales is 'undemocratic and not fit for purpose'

IN their local election manifesto, prospective Labour councillors pledged that the Draft Local Development Plan prepared by the Conservatives would be re-visited.

A new consultation would reflect the needs and desires of people living in the Vale.

This pledge has been dishonoured. As at February 2015, no LDP is in place. Several landowners and large housing developers armed with professional advisers have exploited the situation by submitting planning applications for new estates throughout the rural Vale.

Many have been approved by the Vale Council despite vigorous objections from affected communities.

In theory, the planning proposal process is open handed with all parties involved having the opportunity to present their plans, opinions and objections. The planning officer then prepares a report with a recommendation to the council planning committee, who have the statutory power to make the decision of approval or rejection.

The proposer has the right of appeal against a rejection to the Welsh Government on any grounds, whereas objectors can appeal only if a procedural mistake has been made.

The reality is somewhat different. The proposer is often a UK housing developer with vast financial resources.

Their position is made more favourable by them offering financial payments to the council to fund projects which may or may not be connected with the planning proposal.

These payments are euphemistically referred to as "Section 106 Agreements".

The position of the objectors is very different. The financial costs of employing professional consultants are borne by, in most cases, community councils with limited funds or private individuals.

Their costs cannot be recovered, unlike the developers who hope to make a substantial profit on the sale of the housing development.

There is also an option to submit a call-in request to Welsh Government. This must be done before the council issues its decision notice. Recent rural Vale call-in requests were rejected.

There could be a Judicial Review. Costly – and even if successful the developer usually submits a revised application to restart the process. A topical example is Darren Farm, renamed in the new application "North West Cowbridge".

A complaint could be made to the council with a request for the decision process to be examined. They were judge and jury on the original decision. How can that same council be expected to act as appeal tribunal in a fair and reasonable manner?

A complaint could be made to the Public Service Ombudsman, who refuses to intervene until the council has reviewed the matter.

The existing planning procedure in Wales is not fit for purpose. It clearly favours the large housing developers whose influence over the process is unlimited.

The system is undemocratic and in urgent need of change.

Hospital wait for a consultant

I WAS taken into the Princess of Wales Hospital on Monday, February 10, arriving at 6pm, with a suspected heart attack.

The ambulance arrived at the surgery within 15 minutes which was an excellent response time.

I had blood and other tests within one hour, waited two hours for results, was told that I had to have a further blood test after another six hours, and that I had to stay overnight. The results of these came through at 4am.

There were no available beds, so I had to sit in the waiting room for a total of fourteen and a half hours, which was until 8.30am on Tuesday morning to see the consultant.

The reason for this wait was that there are only junior doctors during the night and they are not capable of making decisions.

I think that this is disgusting, it is quite obvious to me that this Assembly Government keeps changing the Health Minister, but is incapable of sorting our health service.

Roy Jones, Cowbridge.

ANSWER IS TO LEARN WELSH!

THE anonymous person who has created a furore about Cowbridge being an "oasis of Englishness" etc is surely being racist?

Also if someone wants to remain anonymous, does this not indicate that he/she is cowardly or lacks conviction?

And why live in a country whose language you hate? I have learnt Welsh and love to speak it.

Maybe Peter Reed from Barry (February 5) would like to do so? It would give him something to do, instead of moaning about everything Welsh!

Greens surge towards a fairer society

GEM readers may be aware that, over the past six months or so, membership of the Green Party in England and Wales has more than doubled, with new members continuing to join daily.

There are now over 1,500 members in Wales. Within the Vale, membership has mirrored this increase, the number of members having risen from 25 to 50 since November.

For many new members this may be the first time they have joined a political party.

They, and any other people interested in learning more of the Green Party and its policies, are invited to an evening meeting on Wednesday, February 25 at 7.45pm, at the Bonvilston Reading Room, Bonvilston.

As the Green Party candidate in the Vale, I will be happy to answer questions and to discuss policies, as well as meeting members and supporters who would be willing to help during the election campaign e.g. to distribute leaflets and attend hustings.

The 'Green surge' in membership would suggest that an increasing number of people are deeply unhappy at the policies and performances of the main political parties, and are attracted by the Green Party's message of the need for major change towards a fairer society.

Work at Dyfan open space

A resident who lives near Dyfan open space, Barry, which is to become a lagoon, as part of a flood prevention scheme, says she was concerned to hear that the Vale Council planned to recut undergrowth in the area.

Tracey Aberly explained: "We got a letter through on Friday to say recutting of undergrowth would start on Monday, February 23. I think it could be a waste of money. They cut the area last year. What are they going to cut? Hedges? Trees? They are going to dig the field out anyway. Added to that, the nesting season is almost upon us."

Phil Beaman of the Vale Council, said: "The work being undertaken at Dyfan Road simply involves cutting back any previously cleared areas that have regrown. This cutting back is being undertaken before the start of the nesting season so that it can go ahead without any disruption to nesting birds."

£30,000 facelift

ELEVEN shops and businesses along Nolton Street, Bridgend are getting a fresh lick of paint to complement recent improvements to pavements and highways in Bridgend.

Contractors appointed by Bridgend County Borough Council will begin work in the next fortnight.

It is hoped that the £30,000 refurbishments, which are being paid for from the council's special regeneration fund, will encourage more people to come and shop in the town centre.

CHORAL SOCIETY

BARRY Choral Society will be joining Barry Ladies' Choir and Barry Male Voice Choir to present a concert organised by Barry Town Council on February 27, at St Mary's Church, Holton Road at 7pm.

They invite the public, each Wednesday at Crossway Methodist Church between 7.30pm and 9.30pm. For more information, contact Sheila on 01446 748724, or Helen on 02920 531359.

Staff celebrate as they raise more than £4,000 for Ty Hafan charity

STAFF at an award-winning dealership in Cardiff are celebrating this month, after raising £4,052.20 for their Charity of the Year.

The funds were raised for Ty Hafan by staff and customers at Wessex Garages on Hadfield Road throughout 2013 and 2014. Gareth Howells, General Manager at Wessex Garages, explained: "Throughout the past two years we organised and took part in various activities to raise money for Ty Hafan."

"Our most popular event in 2014 was our fundraising evening with the Cardiff Blues in December, during which £1,017.93 was raised. Our digital sales executive, Matt Jones, did an eight-hour static cycle challenge in June and raised £204 for the organisation. Matt was proactive with fundraising ideas and helped to organise the events so a thank you message goes to him."

"We would also like to thank our staff and customers for supporting the events and helping us raise a fantastic amount of money for Ty Hafan during the past two years. We have ended our support for the charity on a high. We are currently in the process of choosing another local charity to support in 2015."

Ty Hafan offers comfort, care and support for life-limited children and young people in Wales. It is dedicated to improving the quality of life for the whole family free of charge.

It was established in 1999 and has helped more than 600 families who live with the reality that their children with life-limiting conditions may not reach the age of 18.

Eleanor Ryan, business and community fundraiser at Ty Hafan, said: "Wessex organised some fantastic fundraisers throughout the two years and also supplied us with four-wheeled support for some of our own events."

"We would like to say a huge 'thank you' to all the staff and customers that made this donation possible. The final figure of £4,052.20 is amazing and will really help local families."

"We take support right into the family home and are there to help families through every step of their unimaginable journey. For Ty Hafan to offer this unique service to families in Wales, we have to raise more than £3.7 million every year." Wessex Garages is a privately-owned company that has outlets in Bristol, Cardiff, Gloucester and Newport. It specialises in new and used car sales across South Wales and the South West.

MY sincere sympathies go out to the families of those individuals who were tragically killed in Bath recently after a heavy goods vehicle ploughed into them.

Apparently, local residents had raised concerns for some time about the safety of such vehicles travelling through the busy and highly populated residential area.

Perhaps this tragedy will act as an impetus for the Vale Council to take action before a similar tragedy strikes in Barry as a result of the construction traffic connected with the Waterfront development.

Since the start of construction work at the Waterfront, I have noticed a significant amount of construction-related heavy goods vehicles travelling down Jenner Road, Pontypridd Road and Park Crescent.

I understand that other local residents have noticed this too and raised concerns. This busy area, used by hundreds of pedestrians each day, predominantly parents and children attending Romilly School, is clearly not an appropriate route for construction traffic.

My understanding is that the Vale Council planning department pre-empted these traffic issues by setting out a route that construction traffic is obliged to use as a condition of the planning consent granted to the developers.

The approved route is via the Barry Docks Link Road and Cardiff Road (past the Dow Coming factory). The drivers of many of the heavy goods vehicles either are not aware of this condition or are choosing to ignore it.

While such a planning condition is hard to enforce per se, the council can quite easily implement restrictions on heavy goods vehicles travelling through residential areas with an exception provided for vehicles which need to access those areas to make deliveries etc.

A failure to adhere to such restrictions is a traffic offence, enforceable by the police. Park Crescent would be an obvious choice but the council should also think about a wider restriction in order to avoid the residential areas of our town becoming a rat run for heavy goods vehicles.

I am sure that most local residents, like myself, are in favour of the Waterfront development and delighted to see that work is finally in full flow. However, public safety must be paramount.

My understanding is that the Waterfront development is due to run for 10 years. Construction traffic will only increase as time goes on, and the council needs to act now to deal with the issue before tragedy strikes closer to home. (Name and address supplied.)

• The GEM has informed the Vale Council of the issues raised in the letter and will publish a full response from the council next week.

From one student council to another!

The student council has been kept busy!

THIS week, the year-7 student council at Llantwit Major Comprehensive went to 5 primary schools to speak to the year-6 student council.

We visited Wick, Rhws, St Illtyd, Llanilltud Fawr and St Athan. We talked about transition and areas in which we can improve it. We also planned a year 6 and 7 transition disco and we asked for their opinions.

I enjoyed speaking to the different schools and I thought it was good fun.

WORKSHOPS WILL FOCUS ON CHILDREN'S RIGHTS

The Vale's 'Rights Ambassadors'.

MEMBERS of the Vale Youth Service's Rights Ambassadors project are planning workshops to enhance young people and adults' knowledge of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child (UNCRC).

"Over the course of the last three months, young people have completed a level two Agored Cymru unit about the UNCRC, so that they are fully equipped with the knowledge they need to develop workshops," a spokesperson said.

Can you ease Jess's fears?

JESS, a three-year-old Alaskan Malamute, is bright and active, but has been under-socialised in her early years, leaving her worried with other dogs.

Once she has made a friend, she plays very nicely, so we hope to find the right dog for her to live with.

She's lively, playful and loves her toys. It is essential that we find Jess an owner who is experienced in training dogs, and who can give her the exercise she needs to keep her happy and healthy.

She can live with children over 14 years of age, and with a patient owner in the right home, she will make a loving companion.

If you can offer Jess, or any of our dogs a home, call 01656 725219, or visit Dogs Trust Bridgend; we are open from 12-4pm every day, except Wednesday.

Skip Helen drives in at Cottrell

Helen with Sara Alexander, Mary Watkins and Maureen Bowen.

ON a cold frosty morning the new ladies' captain of Cottrell Park, Helen Poole, did an incredibly long straight drive, watched by many of the ladies.

The prize for the flag nearest where the ball had landed was won by Madeleine John. Then 30 ladies played a nine hole competition with the best two out of three scores to count - this was won by Toots Plant, Sian Lovell and Margaret Thomas with 36 points, with Mary Watkins, Sara Alexander and Maureen Bowen second with 32 points.

More ladies then joined for an excellent lunch where Helen welcomed every one, and she presented prizes to the ladies who won the competition. She is looking forward to her year in office.

She then presented Janet Cosby, past ladies' captain, with a gift from all the ladies. The new diary with all the events

Saints demolish Builders

BARRY SAINTS progressed to the next round of the Cup with a 5-1 victory over a good John Davey Builders side on a very tricky pitch.

Saints took the lead through Darren Townsend and had Gareth Hegarty to thank in goal allowing them to go into halftime 1-0 up.

Saints added another goal through Townsend, after a great cushioned header by Nathan Williams set him up, but the Builders grabbed a goal after a short goal kick was pounced upon.

Saints then made a few changes which worked in their favour and Michael Evans came on and turned provider for Nathan Williams after a perfect through ball over the defence left Williams to smash the ball home.

Williams then put Townsend through one on one for the Saints talisman to unselfishly lay the ball off for Evans to tap in to the empty net.

Ashley Ashill finished the scoring, converting a one on one through the keeper's legs.

Special thanks to Rebecca Skinner of RS Podiatry for sponsoring the match ball.

RHOOSE ROVERS GO DIRECT!

SINCE the successes of last season, Rhose Rovers FC look like they are on the up.

They have moved up to a higher division, after completing the double of Division Two champions 2013-14 and Dockers Cup winners 2014.

The increase in standard has no doubt been a challenge for the Rovers, alongside a large absentee list in the opening few months of the season. However, with improvements on both the injury and absentee list, it looks like the Rovers are challenging at the right end of the table and will be hoping to recapture the form that saw them complete the double last season.

Signings were made in January but the most crucial signing was the securing of major sponsor Go Direct.

The company, started by Craig Trickett, offers high level tuition for anyone looking to obtain their driving licence. The company has grown so much in a short space of time, spreading across Cardiff and the Vale and can only continue to grow in the future.

Go Direct School of Motoring has been one of the main catalysts behind the Rovers' success this season and hopefully for many seasons to come.

The club would also like to say massive thanks to John Black (match ball), K.R. Building Services and the Cambrian (formerly known as the Flying Club) for their continued support over the last few years - the club wouldn't function without you all.

This Saturday sees the Rovers push towards a second visit to Jenner Park as they face Cadroxton Athletic in the Divisional Cup at 2pm at Ceri Road, and they have an outside chance of challenging for promotion if injuries are kept to a minimum.

If there are any potential sponsors/players that are interested in helping the development of the club, please get in contact with one of our current players/coaches. New sponsors can help by sponsoring a match ball or by sponsoring training/match kit.

Llancarfan school pupils in talent show for charity

PUPILS at Llancarfan Primary School held a talent show on Friday, January 30, to raise funds for the school and this year's chosen charity, The Cerys Potter Foundation.

Heats were held in each class in the morning and the top three acts chosen by the children were performed in front of the whole school in the afternoon.

We had an array of acts, which included singers, dancers, comedians, gymnasts, musicians and even an artist! All the pupils who took part showed some amazing talent and everyone had an absolutely fabulous, fun-filled afternoon.

More photographs can be seen on Twitter, Facebook and the school website. Thank you to everyone who participated and helped make the afternoon such a success.

Rhose WI pays tribute to Tricia, a dear friend

IT was with sadness that Rhose WI stood for a minute's silence in memory of their friend and fellow member Tricia Farley, who died at Holme Tower on January 30.

Tricia was a hardworking committee member and member of the WINOs drama group, and her friendship and great sense of humour will be sorely missed. We extend our deepest sympathy to her sister Avril and brother-in-law Alex.

After the minutes, reports and correspondence, the president introduced the speaker, Clare Revera whose talk was entitled 'Out to Learn Willow'.

This proved to be a fascinating subject. With the aid of photographs and a great deal of practical input, Clare demonstrated the versatility of her product in the making of traditional objects like baskets and in the cultivation and building of 'live willow' structures.

She also showed how willow is being used to produce beautiful sculptures and more practical objects such as coffins and garden ornaments.

Members were then given two strips of willow, a pine cone and some string and were instructed how to make a bird feeder for the garden – these were very successful and the exercise was much enjoyed!

After tea, everyone was reminded that the March meeting will be the Eisteddfod when members have the opportunity to give a short talk of their choice. It is also the time when the Joan Pengilly Cup is awarded.

This year, competitors are asked to make some bara brith and this will be judged at the eisteddfod.

The president also asked for a show of hands to choose the venue of this year's educational outing; dates and choice to be announced later.

The meeting ended with the announcement of the competition and raffle winners, with Pam Jupp the former and Jan Dally the latter.

The next meeting of Rhose WI will be at 7.30pm on March 5 in the Community Hall, Stewart Road, Rhose, when new members and visitors will be very welcome.

Barry Seconds march on in Cup

ABOVE: Barry RFC Seconds were in action on Saturday in the Mallet Cup and emerged 42-5 winners over Caerau Ely, and HOWARD POOLE was on hand to capture the match action – turn to page 38 to read the match report.

New karate team is formed

Kudo team.

IN 2014, Sensei Malcolm Jones (4th Dan, Goshin Karate) was invited to join the prestigious Kudo UK branch of the international organisation.

Kudo is a mixed martial art comprising full contact punches, kicks, throws, and submission techniques on the ground. In November 2014, he presented the idea of fighting in the Kudo to his Karate students and the first Welsh Kudo team was born.

Recently, a group of six Kudo students led by their instructor, Sensei Malcolm, travelled to London to compete in this year's UK National Junior Kudo Championships.

The first fight of the day was an adult exhibition bout between Kudo Wales fighter, Terry Butler and the highest ranking fighter from Kudo Windsor. Within 30 seconds of the bout, Terry had thrown the English fighter to the ground three times with significant impact, finishing the fight with a powerful head shot.

Next up was 17-year-old A-Jay Harry, one of the team's most dedicated students. A-Jay was keen to impress landing a series of knee and body shots, leading to an unexpected second place.

Jayden Moller, Stefan Atkinson and Brenton Kells all battled their way through the rounds, displaying excellent technique gaining respectable fourth places.

The highlight of the day was in the girls' junior category where Natasha Croll won all of her bouts by TKO. Natasha used a combination of throws, punches and head kicks, gaining not only respect but the UK national title and an invitation to the World Championships in Japan. Natasha among others will now have the opportunity to represent the UK along with 60 other countries across the world.

Sensei Malcolm stated that there is too much politics in martial arts and would like to make an open invite to other fighters, no matter what style, to attend the Welsh Kudo squad training sessions which will be held every month. He will continue to teach Goshin Karate in the Buttrills Community Centre, and encourages others to continue their practice, but to use Kudo as the way to test their skills.

Can you help the Welsh Kudo team? For more information contact: malcolmsensei@gmail.com/ www.goshinkarate.org.uk.

Emphatic win for the Llantwit Major under-12s

LAST Sunday Llantwit Major under-12s had an early 10am kick off at Brecon RFC.

After the previous week win over Llandaff North, Llantwit had high hopes of another victory in their sights.

It didn't take long for Llantwit to show Brecon they meant business; only two minutes had passed and from the very first scrum the ball was moved along the backs to the outside centre Ewan Heywood who ran 80 metres to score under the posts, with the conversion completed by Kieran Daw.

From the restart the Llantwit Major forwards kept Brecon under a lot of pressure and a loose kick by a Brecon player saw the ball land into the hands of Cole Saunders, the Llantwit Major fullback, who duly danced his way through the defence to score in the far right hand corner; the try went unconverted.

Again from the restart the Llantwit forwards recycled the ball out to the outside half Kieran Daw, who sprinted to within five metres of Brecon's try line and then offloaded to the supporting Kofi Jones who scored to the right of the posts to make it 17-0.

Brecon came straight back at Llantwit and a lapse of concentration from the defending team saw them concede a converted try. The halftime score was 17-7.

The second half began with the Llantwit Major forwards dominating the breakdowns and set pieces. One breakdown allowed a move out to Kofi to allow him to break through to score his second try.

Llantwit then really started to pile on the points. From a solid scrum the ball was collected and passed out by scrum half Stephen Williams to Kieran, who put in a lovely looping kick into the hands of Kofi, who kindly offloaded to the supporting Ewan for him to score his second try; the conversion was kicked by Kieran.

Brecon again started to put together some good passages of play controlled by their outside half. It was one of these phases which saw the Brecon outside half break through the Llantwit defence, only for him to be tackled and the ball ripped from him by Cole, who went on to run half the length of the pitch to score his second try; Kieran again with the conversion.

With both teams starting to show signs of tiredness the game started to get messy, but one last show of brilliance saw Kofi sidestep his way to finish off the game under the posts. The conversion by Kieran made the final score 43-7.

Thanks to the parents for travelling to Brecon on international day and to all players involved from both teams for an enjoyable game of rugby.

Team: Rian Thomas, Owen David, Aled Leitch, Cole Saunders, Ewan Heywood, Isaac McBride, Jordan Griffith-Lee, Jacob Pereira, Kieran Daw, Kofi Jones, Morgan Thomas, Rhodri Richards, Sam Deere, Sam Jenkins, Sennan Cummings-Jones, Spencer Williams and Stephen Williams.

Kenfig Hill Seconds are just pipped in a league thriller!

KENFIG HILL seconds welcomed Heol Y Cyw to Kenfig Hill for a league match between two of the top teams in the district.

The Mules fielded a young team with many of the forward stalwarts missing; however the team that took the field had plenty of talent and contributed to an excellent game of rugby.

Heol Y Cyw held the upper hand in the tight and always looked to apply pressure at the driving maul.

Heol Y Cyw also possessed speed behind the pack and looked dangerous whenever they moved the ball to their wings.

They opened the scoring with two unanswered tries before Mules scrum half Dan Heatley dummied and crashed over from close range following sustained pressure from the Mules' eight.

Heol Y Cyw responded with a third try following a five yard scrum which saw their number 8 break from the base of the scrum and score wide out. This left the halftime score Kenfig Hill 5, Heol Y Cyw 15.

The Mules upped a gear at the start of the second half and hooker Chris Leyshon broke blind from a ruck 40 yards out and outraced the covering defence to score a fine individual try.

The Mules continued to put Heol Y Cyw under pressure and Leyshon crossed for his second try with a low drive from five yards. This was converted by outside half Lee Rogers to give Kenfig Hill the lead for the first time in the match at 17-15.

Heol y Cyw then

scored an excellent try themselves with their speedy backline showing some fine interpassing to score wide out and thereby regain the lead, albeit only for a short time as the Mules responded with a crisp backline move which saw replacement centre Mike Kennedy take a short ball on the burst to score close to the posts.

The try was converted by fellow centre Connor O'Connell to put the Mules back into the lead, 24-20.

Heol Y Cyw intensified the pressure and kept the Mules in their 22 for the final five minutes of the game.

The last play of the game was a Kenfig Hill scrum on the 22 metre line with the Mules knowing that all they had to do was clear their lines for victory. But the ball was won against the head and the speedster in Heol Y Cyw's backline showed the Mules defence a clean pair of heels to score in the corner leaving Heol Y Cyw winners, 25-24.

This was a first class game of rugby, well refereed by ex-Muler Carl Vincent who ensured the game flowed for the full 80 minutes.

Both teams should be congratulated on putting on a thoroughly enjoyable spectacle with the result in doubt up to the final second.

ON AND OFF THE TURF WITH BRIAN LEE

CRICKHOWELL born and bred Joanna Morgan, who is a living legend in horse racing circles, and who recently announced her retirement, has ridden winners in America, Japan, Australia, Dubai and in many other countries besides.

She was the first female to ride at Royal Ascot and also saddled a winner there when her Rocca Tumu landed the Britannia Handicap in 2013.

She was the first of her sex to ride in an Irish Classic and the first to be placed in one when she was third on El Cito, in the 1980 Irish St Leger.

Joanna, who rode more than 200 winners before hanging up her riding boots to concentrate on training horses, was presented with a life time achievement award by the Irish Sports Council/ Irish Times last year and is now in Ireland's Hall of Fame.

She should now be inducted into the Welsh sports' hall of fame and I call upon the committee members to look into the great achievements of this former Welsh point-to-point rider.

CAPPA BLEU
Llancarfan trainer Evan Williams has announced the retirement of his former Grand National runner-up Cappa Bleu, after the 13-year-old was pulled up in the Weatherbys Hamilton Chase at Ascot on Saturday.

The 2009 Cheltenham Foxhunters Chase winner was also third in the 2009 Welsh Grand National at Chepstow and also finished fourth in the 2012 Aintree spectacular.

I still maintain that if the Aintree run-in hadn't been shortened in 2013 when Cappa Blue finished a fast finishing second under regular rider Paul Moloney to Aurora's Encore, he might well have won the race and become the first horse trained in Wales to have won since Kirkland in 1905.

Evan notched up his 56th winner at Ffos Las on Sunday when his five-year-old Wabanaki took the maiden open National Hunt flat.

Ridden by stable jockey Paul Moloney, Wabanaki, the odds-on favourite, scored by nine lengths from Chief Brody.

BOBS LAW WINS DUNRAVEN
Only five horses faced the starter for Wales' richest hunter chase the Dunraven Welsh Foxhunters Open Hunter Chase staged at Ffos Las and two previous winners fought out the finish.

Bobs Law, partnered by Mr C Gethings, got home by a head from the odds-on favourite Universal Soldier, ridden by Ogmore's Nick Williams.

Bobs Law is trained by Mickey Bowen whose father Peter Bowen had won the previous mares' handicap hurdle race with the top weighted Princess Tara.

WELSH POINT-TO-POINT SEASON UNDER WAY

The South Wales and Monmouthshire Point-To-Point season gets under way on Sunday with the first of the two Currie & Llangibby fixtures at Howick near Chepstow.

The first race is at 12 noon and a number of horses and riders from the Vale are expected to take part.

The trainer in form is Merthyr Mawr's Jonathan Tudor, who has already saddled three winners from just six runners.

Wales women salvage pride with win over the world champions!

While the Welsh senior men's team were on the losing end against England, the women's team salvaged some pride for the country with a comprehensive 13-0 win over the current world champions.

JULIE HANCOCK was on hand to capture the action. Of local note were local stars Robyn Wilkins and Mel Clay who play for Pencoed Phoenix, Clay picking up her first cap in the best of circumstances!

Robyn Wilkins and Mel Clay.

Sully Seniors are defeated

HAVING won their section of the league, Sully senior team qualified for the national play-offs and were drawn to play Selway (Llanelli) in the quarter finals at Pontardawe.

Selway were represented by a number of former internationals and Sully were expecting a tough afternoon but with a strong side available on the day Sully were confident of success.

The Pontardawe rink was running at a nice pace with players able to play good drawing bowls on all hands which allowed for a good game proven by some early excellent bowling.

After the first five ends the game was level at 17-17, with Brian Griffiths' rink the only Sully rink behind, down by seven.

The game continued to be close and by the 10th end there was only two shots in the game with Sully ahead 35-33.

Griffiths' rink finally succumbed losing 16-19, while the rink of Roy Richards, Mike Doyle, Brian Foscolo and Fred Phillips ended up as Sully's only winning rink, 20-17.

It was a great effort from the Sully team and the loss by 15 shots wasn't a fair reflection on the game, however the players are already looking forward to next season.

opposition two fours, one from a weighted bowl from McLeod which hit the jack, which bounced back off a back bowl back up the green to four woods belonging to Selway!

The other four came from a misdirected bowl from the opposition's skip which come off an outside bowl and moved the jack for a count of four.

This appeared to deflate the Sully rink who from being 19-13 up did not score on the last six ends, eventually losing 19-27.

The rink of Dave Snelling lost their way after holding seven on the ninth end until the Selway skip drew the shot with his last wood resulting in Snelling's rink only winning two out of the next 12 ends.

The rinks of Phillips and Griffiths were fighting hard to cover the other rinks but the difference was too great and both were attempting to pull off difficult shots to pull back the deficit.

Griffiths' rink finally succumbed losing 16-19, while the rink of Roy Richards, Mike Doyle, Brian Foscolo and Fred Phillips ended up as Sully's only winning rink, 20-17.

Overall result: Sully 70, Selway 85. Rink scores (Sully first): D Snelling 15, P Richardson 22, B Griffiths 16, K Thomas 19, K McLeod 19, D Davies 27, F Phillips 20, B Kingdon 17.

Cowbridge youth teams in Cup action

BOTH Cowbridge RFC youth teams were in action last Saturday in the Welsh Cup and Bowl.

At the Athletic Field Cowbridge entertained Bridgend Athletic in a game that was a credit to both teams and an great advert for youth rugby.

In an exciting match Cowbridge BC team won 22-15 - but it was tense! In winning the game the team extended their winning run to 20 games in all competitions in the last 12 months.

Bridgend scored first when with five minutes gone their outside half rounded the rush defence to score wide out.

Cowbridge hit back with a score for debutant prop Eddie Drake who broke through several tackles from 10 metres out to crash over. Outside half Alex Guard was just wide with the conversion.

Bridgend added a penalty, but just before half time, and after a number of phases in attack, wing Zac Summerhayes finished off a move after No 8 Dan Holder picked up at the back of the scrum and fed the ball to scrum half Tom Lucas to put Summerhayes over in the corner. The half time score was 10-8.

In the second half after good play between both teams hooker Will Haines put Cowbridge further ahead when he broke through the defence to dive over under the posts for a try that Guard converted.

With about 15 minutes to go Bridgend's scrum half scored a great try from 15 metres out, brushing off a tackle to go under the posts for a converted try to make it 17-15.

However, Cowbridge had the last word with a kick across field by full back Joss Thomas (that he says he intended) caught by centre Cameron Gibbon, who swivelled out of a tackle to race to the line from 25 metres.

The last 10 minutes was all action but credit to second row Matt Lock, as he stole a line out from the opposition to allow a clearing kick, the final score of 22-15. A great team effort led from the front by captain Dan Holder.

The BD youth team were up against it at Ystradgynlais and gave their all, going down 22-5.

Ystrad have been sweeping all before them this season, and with a much bigger pack they were very strong in the tight play meaning possession was hard to come by; the half time score was 19-0.

Huge credit to the players as they stuck to their task and scored a great try when full back Jon Nexmand finished off a move through the hands.

With Ystrad only managing a penalty Cowbridge took the second half by 3-5, the final score 22-5.

The BC youth now go into the semi final at a neutral venue on March 7 where they will face Pontypridd, Aberavon Quins or Penallta.

This Saturday the 1st XV have a must-win game at home to Old Penarthians; the BC youth are billed to be at home to Llanishen and the BD youth away at Taffs Well - all kick offs are at 2.30pm.

Llantwit under-14s are on lookout for players

Llantwit Major under-14s at Cadriff Arms Park.

LLANTWIT MAJOR RFC under-14s are on the lookout to bring in some new talent into our squad.

With the Six Nations in full swing it's a good opportunity for anyone interested in giving rugby a go in school year 9 to come along. Llantwit Major RFC is a club at the heart of the community. We pride ourselves in being able to develop future stars and encourage a high but fun work ethic. The age group play frequently at the Cardiff Arms Park and test their abilities against teams from across the Blues region as well as challenging themselves at force conditioning gym in Llandow.

We believe in giving every one of our players the ample game time they deserve and also try to create a good team environment by doing team building events such as paintballing and swimming.

We have planned a short tour down to Bristol at the end of the season as well as planning a big tour at under-16s level.

If you or your child want to give rugby a go in a fun, friendly and professional setup then look no further than Llantwit Major.

Rugby experience isn't essential as our coaching team will provide training to bring them up to speed with the rest of the squad.

BRIAN LEE'S (POINT-TO-POINT) BLAST FROM THE PAST - 1985

THIS week, The GEM's Brian Lee, who has been reporting on the Welsh Hunt Racing scene for almost half-a-century, looks back at some of the top racing stories of 1985.

Under the heading 'Hamer's Shock Victory' I reported that "Welsh champion point-to-point rider Paul Hamer of Coychurch, Bridgend, partnered his brother Geoffrey's Yellow Jersey to a shock 25-1 win in the £5,000 Audi Grand Prix de Chasse at Sandown Park yesterday.

"Aged 24, Paul, who was having his first ride since being injured in a fall at the Carmarthen Hunt a fortnight ago, was chalking up his first winner under Rules. Paul, who has ridden 47 winners between the flags, drives a lorry for a living while his brother Geoffrey, who trains the horse, is employed in a Cardiff betting shop.

"Paul, who used to compete in local gymkhanas alongside his friend Neil Doughty, who won last year's Grand National on Hallo Dandy, said: 'Yellow Jersey dropped himself out about four fences from home but he rallied on again.' Yellow Jersey, who is hunted with Llangeinor, took on the big guns of point-to-pointing and his win has given Welsh hunt-racing a tremendous boost.

"Paul is bound to come in for some well deserved back slapping at today's Pentyrch Hunt at Llantwit Major where he has several rides."

At that meeting, under the heading 'First Win After 17 Years', my report read: "One rider rode his 100th winner and another had his first at the Pentyrch Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases. Newport's Steve Shinton, aged 33, who has been riding for 17 years, finally made it into the winners' enclosure when the family-owned seven-year-old brown gelding Beruto landed the second division of the Maiden.

"Basaleg's Tim Rooney, who has ridden nine hunter chase winners, brought his total number of wins to 100 when chalking up his 91st success between-the-flags on 14-year-old Crosstown, who is owned by Barry farmer Ted Williams.

"Crosstown, who had finished runner-up in his previous four races, came home four lengths clear of Final Clear in the Adjacent.

"In the four-mile Open for the Welsh Point-To-Point Grand National, odds-on favourite French Bob looked like he was going to win his fourth race in a row, but he ran out approaching the last leaving Purple Haze, ridden by Wade Willis, to finish one-and-a-half lengths ahead of August Moon, with the 1983 winner Mr Moneybags a further length away in third spot.

"Tarnya Davis had the Ladies' Open won on Daintly Dolly when Luchello came down three from home and Grenville Richards' mare was winning for the third time this season.

"Tim Lewis rode a well judged race on Sporting Tack to win the Members by six lengths from Quiz Master with last year's winner Grand Trianon a further eight lengths back in third place."

For the record, Bridgend butcher Jon Tudor won the restricted on Trailing Rose.

One point-to-point rider who was rarely out of the headlines was Cowbridge farmer John Llewellyn and under the heading 'Llewellyn Gets His 150th Win' I revealed: "John Llewellyn from Cowbridge reached a milestone in his riding career when landing his 150th winner at the Llangeinor Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases.

"Llewellyn, aged 38, got Mr Money Bags home by a neck in the Men's Open to reach his 140th win between-the-flags and his 10 wins under rules made it a historic 150 altogether. Llewellyn, who made history a couple of years ago by becoming the first Welshman to win the National risers' championship outright, made it win 151 when scoring on Young Sugar Bush in the maiden.

"He now has a two point lead over Tim Rooney in the Welsh riders' championship. Bridgend's Jon Tudor, who is enjoying his best ever season, won the Members' race on Island Mist who was left in the lead when Rose Stuart came down at the second last fence.

"Final Flirtation, a 33-1 outsider, came to the aid of the bookmakers when landing the adjacent from Linkville who was half-a-length down at the winning post. Final Flirtation, a half-sister to Dudley Cup winner Norman Case, was ridden by 21-year-old David Llewellyn.

"David's brother Carl, aged 19, who is assistant trainer to Bristol's Jim Old won the Restricted Open on Yukon Tina."

Carl Llewellyn and David Llewellyn are not related to Cowbridge's John Llewellyn. They are from west Wales and, of course, Carl went on to ride two Grand National winners in Party Politics (1992) and Earth Summit (1998). Perhaps David's claim to fame is that he is the owner, breeder and trainer of Lady Dudley Cup winner and prolific point-to-pointer Rosies Peacock.

These days, Shropshire's Lucy Crow is a well-known leading trainer of point-to-pointers. However, back then she was a leading rider and under the heading 'Lucy's Journey Proves In Vain', I reported: "Leading lady rider Lucy Crow made a four hour journey from north Shropshire to ride at the Ystrad Hunt Point-To-Point at Llantwit Major. But her long trek proved disappointing, as she could only finish fourth on odds-on Optimum in the Ladies' Open Race.

"The race was won by 18-year-old Heather

McCaul, who rode a stylish finish on Violet Higg's Magic Rock to win by six lengths from Red Spirit, partnered by Rhonda's Shajn Morgan. Another young rider in good form was Caerphilly's Tim Jones who took the Adjacent on Ann Holly's MS Largesse who was winning for the third time this season.

"Jones, aged 19, is the son of the late Lloyd Jones, who was killed in a race riding accident some years ago. Mr Moneybags, one of the toughest point-to-pointers in training, who was having his fourth race in as many weeks, won the Men's Open under Cowbridge's John Llewellyn by a distance from Friday's Meadow, with Pipegate a further distance away in third place."

Mrs Shan Farr, formerly Miss Shan Morgan (she married Aberthyn farmer Ross Farr) has a daughter Emily who has ridden point-to-point winners in the Vale as well as in New Zealand, and it is nice to be reporting on the successes of the sons and daughters of the mothers and fathers I was writing about all those years ago.

Under the heading 'Shan Holds Off Late Challenge', this is how my report dated April 23, 1985, of the Glamorgan Hunt Point-To-Point read: "Norman Jones' ex-Irish chaser Luchello made nearly all the running to win the first division of the Ladies' Open at the Glamorgan Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases.

"Confidently ridden by Rhonda's Shan Morgan, Luchello easily held off the late challenge of odds-on favourite Dainty Dolly. The second division went to outsider Magic Rock who gave Heather McCaul her first winning ride in just four races.

"Heather, aged 18, from Hereford rode a stylish finish to score by half a length from the odds-on favourite Mickley That. Caerphilly's Mike Bishop saw his promising seven-year-old Timebreaker score a comfortable win over 14-year-old Hobo in the Adjacent hunts race.

"Timebreaker was the first leg of a double for Tim Rooney who later landed a division of the maiden on Savage Sally. Cowbridge farmer John Llewellyn also had a double with the grey Suiker Bos in the members' race and Master Straight in the first division of the Men's Open.

"Schoolteacher Peter Murphy, aged 38, who has been riding for only two seasons, chalked up his first winner when 13-year-old Suntan Susie, who he owns in partnership with Mike Hodges, won division two of the Maiden.

"St Athan farmer John Thomas took the first division on Cyril Liley's five-year-old Ocean Boy who beat Ardcen by half-a-length."

Pupils' cross-country success

The girls did Llantwit Major School proud.

ON Wednesday, February 11, five girls from Llantwit Major School travelled to Brecon to represent the Cardiff/Vale team in their various age groups.

It was a dry but very cold day, the snow topped hills in the distance making a picturesque view for the runners.

Ellie Atkinson and Erin Hayes were members of the senior team. They both had excellent races, finishing second and 10th out of a field of 50 runners. Their excellent performances helped the team finish second in a tough competition.

Hannah Jones represented the middle girls team, Alisha Hayes the junior girls team which finished second in the competition and Erin McCloughlin the year 7 team which finished third in the competition - well done to all girls.

Congratulations also go to Erin Hayes who gained her first Welsh vest for cross-country when she represented the Welsh team in the Cardiff cross challenge competition in January. SB

Barry Seconds progress in Cup at Caerau's expense

BARRY 2nd XV welcomed the visit of Caerau Ely, who were on the back of a defeat by Barry's 1st XV, to the Reservoir Fields for a Mallet Cup second round tie.

A spate of players unavailable due to touring Scotland for the Six Nations, and also Valentine's Day commitments, meant that coach Rhidian Scott and manager Ken Chow gave a first start for Jordan Clarke on the wing, while there were also recalls for James Hadfield and Josh Flynn after long-term injuries.

The home side started with an extra step in their stride, possibly because of the long time since they played a competitive game, and the visitors found it difficult to live with that tempo. With Hadfield, Dominic Busuttill and Sion Vidal to the fore, Barry pinned their opponents early on as they pressed for the opening score.

After Ashley Adams had wasted an early penalty opportunity from kickable distance, Barry's pressure was rewarded when Dave Evans' crunching tackle saw the ball spilled by Caerau, and Hadfield was on hand to open the scoring with a simple try. Adams added the extras.

Then the floodgates opened. Shifting the ball quickly out wide, Barry negated the power of the Caerau forwards to send Jamie Oaten galloping through from midfield, and despite seemingly running out of gas towards the line, he managed to touch down for a second converted try.

With still 10 minutes to go from halftime, the game seemed all but over when Hadfield once again finished off a fine Barry move to score underneath the posts, with the conversion a formality.

Hadfield, however, injured himself in the process, and his withdrawal sparked a mini revival from the visitors who laid siege to the Barry line, but were repelled by some typically stern tackling from John Miles, Lee Jones and Evans. At the interval the score was 21-0.

With the other scorer Oaten also withdrawn at halftime, Caerau sensed a chance of a comeback. However, that was quickly thwarted when quick ball generated by the Barry forwards and scrum-half Gallivan gave Adams the opportunity to score a well-worked try. He converted the try himself to put Barry out of sight.

Using a combination of forward power and slick passing from the backs, Barry would add two more tries before the end. Gallivan was the first to profit from a close-range effort, before Busuttill crashed over underneath the posts showing great determination and power.

To their credit, the visitors rallied late on with only 13 men and were rewarded rightly with an unconverted try at the death, making the final score 42-5, but the day ultimately belonged to Barry, who have now dispatched two of the favourites for the cup in the last two rounds.

The 1st XV will host Llandaff North this weekend, while the 2nd XV will return to action on March 7 when they play Llanishen at home.

Team: Mephram; Poole, Busuttill, Evans, Clarke; Adams, Gallivan; Morris, Vidal, Corne; Jones @, Oaten; Miles, Hadfield, Rolfe. Replacements: Thomas, Flynn, Westall, Dimond. Man of the match: Miles.

Wolves have too much bite for Rhoose

AFTER the heavy rain on Friday, the pitch was in very good condition for this game between Dinas Wolves under-12s and Rhoose.

The visitors had instructions to press high and move the ball as fast as they could. Doing this throughout the game gave the villagers so many opportunities.

Goals came thick and fast in the opening 30 minutes with an absolute cracker from Jake Frost. Kieran Quest and Kyle Booker bossed the wings and offered wide while Tylor Williams, Jacob Moss, Robson Mallum gave the team a great platform to work off.

Dylan Morris played such a high line in goals there was little space to get in behind the Dinas team.

Going forward Wolves play with such verve and the movement was so lively they cut through the home side to score some great team goals.

The boys train very hard on a style of play so they know where and when to go and their work rate for each is other is a joy to watch.

Man of the match Callum Hewitson scored with a great overhead kick, with goals from Jake Frost, Jake Lewis (3), Kyle Booker (2), Joe Doughty (2), Cole Saunders, Callum Hewitson (3), Bayley Harewood (2) and an own goal.

The lads wish Zak, Connor and leuan a speedy recovery.

Young skaters have bright future ahead

TWO young figure skaters from the Vale have recently been selected for the British development squad.

Harriett Wells (8), and Joseph Webb (11), started skating when Harriett was four and Joseph was seven.

They got together as a pair when they were six and nine. Harriett and Joseph entered their first competition in Basingstoke at this young age, were placed third and competed in Bradford again a year later and placed first.

Harriett and Joseph have dedicated the last year to their skating tests and in December passed their level 1 and 2 and have recently been put in for their level 3.

The pair train at Cardiff Planet Ice five times a week, some days getting on the ice for 6am.

Harriett goes to Ysgol Sant Curig in Barry and the school is very supportive of her.

She is currently on the development squad as a single skater, as well as a pair.

Joseph started skating on a family day out; he got on the ice and took to it like a duck to water and never looked back.

He goes to St Iltyds Primary in Llantwit Major, where the school have always offered him lots of encouragement.

Recently, Harriett and Joseph appeared on ITV Wales News, talking about their skating, and have taken part in other filming programmes and have been lucky enough to skate with celebrities. Harriett and Joseph are the youngest pair in Britain on the development squad and are working towards competing in the British championships in November 2015.

They are both really excited about going to their new home in Cardiff Ice Arena Wales.

The families are looking for sponsorship to help the pair with training and kit.

If anyone can help, please contact Owen on 07968 734042.

Sully bowls team lose to top flight Newport

SULLY indoor bowls championship team travelled to Newport last Saturday for their final league game with great expectancy, yet suffered a humiliating defeat.

Newport always field a strong team and Saturday was no exception with a number of current and past internationals playing, therefore Sully had to play above the norm to force a result.

It was soon evident in the early ends that Newport were in no mood to make it easy for the visitors and went straight into a 19 shot lead, 18-37, by the end of the fifth.

At this point three Sully rinks of Martin Clarke, Ken McLeod and Brian Foscolo were actually competing strongly and were ahead by three, two and three shots respectively, but the rinks of Fred Phillips, Mat Woodcock and Brian Griffiths were struggling against some fine bowling from the Newport rinks skipped by Tom Nicholls, Mike Dick and Alan Bradford.

By the 10th end Newport piled on the pressure and had increased their lead to 30 shots, 38-68, with the Sully players way off form and continuing to struggle against a Newport team bowling at the top of their game.

At the three-quarter mark Newport were well ahead by an embarrassing 56 shots, 57-113, with still six ends to play. Only the rinks of Foscolo and McLeod were making a game of it, being level and one behind respectively.

By the 21st and final end, only Foscolo's rink of Graham Cogbill, Gary Eastment and Mike Doyle managed a fine win, beating an excellent Newport rink skipped by Brian Howard 21-19 by taking a three on the final end. Unfortunately McLeod's rink, who had fought their way to the front by the 19th end, then dropped a two and a single on the last two ends to lose by one shot, 16-17.

The other Sully rinks didn't turn up on the day and all lost heavily but hopefully this will have given the newer players an insight as to where they have to be in the future to improve their chances of competing against the teams like Newport and Blaenau Gwent.

Match result: Sully (88) two points, Newport (135) 20 points.

Good results for young footballers

BARRY Town United under-19s recorded their third win in four competitive matches recently, with a thrilling 5-4 victory at Caldicot Town in Welsh League Youth Division East.

Goals from Adam Owens, Keir McNery, Bradley O'Loughlin (2) and Taylor Harris secured the points under the floodlights at Jubilee Way, moving the Town above AFC Porth, who they edged out 4-3 the previous weekend.

The under-14s, coming off a 5-2 triumph against Llantwit Major, battled hard to secure a point at St Athan, while goals from Joseff Rosser and Kenzie Ashton helped the under-12s come from two goals behind to earn a 2-2 draw against Dinas Powys.

Six of the best for the Penarth hockey firsts

WHILE their respective scorelines might have suggested massacres suitable for Valentine's Day, Penarth Hockey Club's two sides produced equally valiant performances in victory and defeat.

PENARTH 1
LANDSDOWN 1
Having been forced into a weekend of inactivity after their fixture with bottom club Cheltenham was postponed by a frozen pitch, Penarth's 1st XI returned to action on Saturday as they welcomed mid-table rivals Lansdown to Barry for a head-to-head over seventh position in De Cymru & The Marches 1.

The first encounter between the two clubs had resulted in a 6-2 reverse for the Bears but, on home turf, the green-and-white machine began more strongly, taking the game to the visitors and wasting little time before opening the scoring as Owen Hopkins converted following some neat interplay with Sam Chick.

Although Penarth were moving the ball well, their second goal came courtesy of one of the finest individual goals Barry had witnessed as Chris Baker picked the ball up and ran through what appeared to be the entire Lansdown team before slotting past the helpless keeper.

Despite appearing to have the game under control, Penarth were determined not to take their foot off the gas, and continued to put pressure on the hapless Lansdown defence, scoring once more before halftime as Chick found the net to make it 3-0 at the interval.

The break seemed to give Lansdown respite and the visitors started the second half more strongly, taking the game to Penarth and eventually pulling a goal back as their possession told.

Reducing the deficit served to boost the Gloucestershire side's confidence and Penarth had to work hard for the next 10 minutes as they came under increased pressure.

Having weathered the storm, however, the Vale side gradually began to take back control, and put the game beyond doubt with two quick goals as, first, Baker scored to make it 4-1 and then set up Dave Kidby for the fifth.

With the points – and a move up the table – in the bag, Baker completed his personal hat-trick to make it 6-1 at the final whistle, but Penarth remain in the thick of the relegation battle with only seven points separating fourth from 11th.

CARDIFF & MET 'F' 4 PENARTH

'A' 0
After their hard-fought victory over old rivals Whitchurch, Penarth's 2nd XI continued a run of fixtures against teams above them in De Cymru 2 with a trip to second-placed Cardiff & Met.

Again without a couple of key players, the Vale side were definitely the underdogs but refused to buckle under the weight of expectation.

The early exchanges proved equally-matched, despite Cardiff having the better chances, and Penarth gave as good as they got, passing well through midfield to give the home side something to think about.

Cardiff eventually broke the deadlock when a poor clearance was returned to the Penarth 'D' and converted past the helpless Jason Harris but, having fallen behind against the run of play, Penarth responded positively, taking the game to their hosts and only narrowly failing to equalise as Craig Llewellyn saw a series of penalty corners blocked on the line.

The single goal continued to split the sides at the interval, giving Penarth hope of getting something out of the game, and the Bears again created chances with Dave Watkins leading the line.

Unable to convert pressure into goals, however, Penarth fell further behind as Cardiff took advantage of their next foray into the Penarth area, and quickly made it 3-0 via a deflected penalty corner.

Knowing that the scoreline did little to reflect their efforts, Penarth continued to battle hard, with Dave Thomas and James Davies providing the link between the hard-working defensive line of Llewellyn, Paul Roberts, Ian Smith, Graeme Jones and Zbig Sobiersierski, and the combination of Watkins, Matt Birch and Rory Vizard up front.

A consolation goal refused to come, however, and Cardiff added a fourth from the penalty spot after a contentious penalty corner was illegally blocked on the line.

The 4-0 scoreline nevertheless flattered the home side, who later admitted that the game had been the hardest of a season that has so far yielded 122 goals en route to almost certain promotion.

Penarth, meanwhile, conceded back the sixth place earned with victory over Whitchurch but remain in contention for a top five finish.

This weekend sees the 1st XI taking on two crucial away games, as a trip to face Bristol & West is followed by the rearranged fixture in Cheltenham, knowing a brace of victories would be enough to potentially vault the Bears from seventh to fifth and a whole lot closer to safety.

The second, meanwhile, will be eager to avenge a 5-2 defeat to a Carew side whose lowly league position disguises a turnaround in form prompted by their pre-Christmas merger with Swansea.

Penarth Hockey Club always welcomes new, old and returning players, umpires, supporters, friends and helpers regardless of age and ability.

Training takes place on the artificial turf at Barry Sport Centre every Wednesday, with the juniors in action between 6-7pm and seniors between 7-8pm.

GOOD WEEK FOR CHESS TEAMS

ON Monday the Barry Chess Club had two matches.

The Camelots took on local rivals Penarth Pirates with the Quarks entertaining St Johns' College Leptons.

Both matches ended with 4-1 victories for Barry, and of the 10 boards in action we only lost one game so it was a good night all round.

The pick of the games featured Pagona Mavroyenneas. Over the past two weeks her father Nick has obtained good results and this time it was his daughter's turn.

In the opening she won a pawn but being a generous player she soon found herself a piece down. However there were a number of players milling around who were willing her to find a winning move.

She had an opportunity but failed to spot it, however her opponent also failed to spot it. The second time she found the move to record her first ever win in the league - well done Pagona.

Later in the week the Bosons traveled to Cardiff to take on league leaders the Cardiff Castles.

In a reversal of fortune the Bosons earned a 3.5-1.5 win; this moves the Bosons up to fourth.

More importantly the Camelots have gained ground on the Castles and move up to second, only 1.5 points behind. Also of note here a new but experienced player to Barry, Matthew Davies, played his first games for us in both the Bosons and Camelots matches, recording a win in both.

The fourth round of the Club Championships also took place this week.

It was a good night to be playing black on the top boards and the championship is surely now a three-way fight between Ashley Davis, Craig Woolcock and Mat Parry.

The 2014 champion, Lee Davis is putting up a title defence reminiscent of Manchester United during the David Moyes era!

Unbeaten Windsor Lewis holds on to his lead in the plate on tie-break from Chris Green, while Dave Mahoney holds a slight edge over Nick Mavroyenneas in the battle for the Bowl (assuming Windsor is destined for greater glory).

On the night both Windsor Lewis and Stephen Bonutto drew games against players graded around 300 points higher than them.

The Barry Chess Club meets at 7.30pm each Monday at the West End Club, St. Nicholas Road, Barry CF62 6QY.

The club is open to players of all standards; whether you are interested in playing competitive chess or just the occasional friendly games.

New players are very welcome to just turn up on the night but if you contact one of the club members through the website we can explain what is happening on the night you have in mind, and arrange for someone to greet you on your arrival.

SIX NATIONS RUGBY

SCOTLAND 23 Wales 26

A CLOSE RUN THING IN BATTLE OF THE DEFENCES, BUT... Murrayfield recovery put Wales back on course for title bid

A YEAR AGO, one week after an insipid display against England, when they were crushed 19-28 at Twickenham, Wales partially rescued their 2014 Six Nations campaign with a resounding 51-3 victory over Scotland in almost a carnival atmosphere at the Millennium Stadium.

In a strange quirk of fate, the two teams faced each other again on Sunday last – in the wake of Wales' even more dismal display in the 16-21 surrender to England the week before.

However, this time the battlefield wasn't Cardiff, but Edinburgh, with Scottish rugby no longer in disarray, but now steadily advancing under the firm hand of their new Kiwi commander, head coach Vern Cotter, and bolstered by their battling display in losing 15-8 to France.

Even so, the Welsh camp were hoping that history would repeat itself and that the 120th cross-border clash between the two home nations since they first met 132 years ago (on January 8, 1883, at Raeburn) would add to their 24 victories and three draws – compared to the home team's 32 wins – on Scottish soil.

The overall match statistics also strongly favoured Wales – 68 wins compared to the Scots' 48 – with the Dragon having amassed a commanding total of 1,558 points against Scotland's 1,188.

Moreover, Wales had triumphed on the previous seven occasions, a run stretching back to 2008, when Kiwi head coach Warren Gatland first took over the reins – and the current squad had the added incentive of needing to make amends for the failures against England and justify his decision to resist calls for drastic changes.

"There are times when you have to make changes and others when you have to back the players, and the forwards get a chance to redeem themselves," he averred.

"We probably got caught up in the way the (England) game played out; we need to be more expressive and play a bit more rugby. We have to get back on the horse."

Skipper Sam Warburton gave a clear hint of the intense pressure the team was now under to perform, following criticism of the display against England: "Teams are starting to play a bit less rugby against us and it's all about how we can adapt to that."

He added: "Scotland is a must-win game for us. We now need four victories to have a chance of winning the Six Nations title."

In the event, a bruising encounter, packed with incident and controversy right to the end, at a Murrayfield stadium resounding to strains of 'Hymns and Arias' from the massed ranks of red-festooned Welsh supporters, saw Scotland scoring a try in the 79th minute, but Wales squeaking home 26-23 in a dramatic finale.

And drama there was in plenty, with Wales tightening up the loose kicking game that had been so costly against England and reverting to the familiar direct approach, taking the game to the Scots with ball in hand – in a way they had notably failed to do in Cardiff.

They quickly began to impose themselves and drew first blood with a penalty after five minutes, slotted over by the ever-reliable Leigh Halfpenny.

The battling Scots responded, against the run of play, with a breakaway try by stylish full back Stuart Hogg, converted by scrum half and captain Greig Laidlaw, to give an early reminder that they were not to be taken lightly. More chances went a-begging through a combination of Scottish over-eagerness, poor decision making, and basic handling errors, but Wales were forced to concede an easy penalty, which Laidlaw slotted over to make the score 10-3.

Then it was the Scots' turn to offend and Halfpenny cut the arrears with a simple penalty of his own. With the visitors now increasingly dominating possession, they inexplicably turned down another three points with a kickable penalty – opting instead to drive for the line. The pack lost possession, leading to a Scottish scrum and the home defence held firm.

A controversial turning point came when Scotland outside half Finn Russell upended his opposite number Dan Biggar in a dangerous aerial challenge and was handed a yellow card by New Zealand referee Glen Jackson (who was to come in for criticism for this and other decisions) on the grounds that the player's actions were not 'intentional'.

(That, though, was not a defence accepted when Wales captain Sam Warburton was controversially shown a red card in the 2011 Rugby World Cup semi-final against France!)

One wonders what certain commentators who felt that a yellow card was punishment enough, would have said if a helpless Biggar had been gravely injured in the incident?

On this note, where players' health and safety is concerned, officials have a clear duty to be consistent, particularly with another RWC imminent. Not surprisingly, the player concerned was cited by the match commissioner. As this column has previously noted, a yellow card was surely intended only for technical offences. If nothing else, such incidents highlight the need for further clarity on this whole contentious issue.

In the event, Russell's ten minute absence proved costly to his side – as first Halfpenny brought Wales to a single point deficit (10-9), and then scrum half Rhys Webb added to his remarkable scoring exploits in a red jersey by rounding off a move which Halfpenny converted from wide out.

continuing set-piece problems.

However, they now have an extra week to prepare for the next match in Paris on Saturday, February 28, against a French team that is yet to fire, but has a formidable pack who will be out to exploit any weaknesses up front.

That should be warning enough for Wales to get this aspect of their act together!

Welsh outside half Dan Biggar claims the ball, but is propelled high into the air in an incident that underlines the urgent need for a tightening of the laws concerning aerial challenges.

Russell in the 'sin-bin' for a far less serious misdemeanour, it was Wales' turn to come under renewed pressure, but the defence held firm, to go into halftime 16-10 in the lead.

The margin was almost immediately narrowed to 16-13 in the second period with the return of Russell, when Wales were penalised and Laidlaw made no mistake, but Davies' return to the field saw Wales turn the screw, resulting in a penalty award.

Halfpenny's attempt hit an upright but bounced the right way and when the Welsh scrum, which had inevitably been expected to struggle in the absence of tight head Samson Lee, won a rare ball against the head, only the scrum half's fumble foiled a seemingly certain touchdown.

In fact, it was Scotland who added to their score with a Laidlaw penalty and the tension was ratcheted up further when a try by lively wing Liam Williams was disallowed for obstruction, and then Halfpenny for once missed with a penalty attempt.

At 19-16 and with eyes already turning to the clock, both sides knew that the next score would be decisive – and in fact it was Jonathan Davies who powered through for a gifted try under the posts, which Halfpenny converted to make the score 26-16.

Scotland were not finished yet and launched yet another determined attack, only thwarted by a herculean Welsh defence, and a pass that was adjudged forward.

They were not to be long denied, however, and pummeled away at the Welsh line, ironically-named replacement Welsh finally hurling himself through a pile of bodies for a try, converted by Laidlaw, to make the score 26-23.

As the final whistle blew, it was celebration time in Edinburgh for the ecstatic army of Welsh fans who had made the long journey north to witness their mightily relieved team get their Six Nations campaign back on track.

As ever when these two Celtic rivals meet, it was a hard-fought, high-scoring affair, not lacking in passion and commitment, and the Welsh camp will relish the improved display – though a high penalty count (on both sides) will be a cause for concern – as will Wales'
